LONDON — British efforts to discover the reason for the great flood of refugees from mainland Communist China into Hong Kong during the last three weeks have drawn a complete blank.

Thousands to be Admitted Into U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has cleared the way for the admission to the United States of thousands of refugees from Communist China. Their exodus from Hong Kong is expected to start within two weeks.

Kennedy invoked emergency powers Wednesday to lower the normal immigration barrier to Chinese. The move, said U. S. officials, should help ease pressures in the British crown colony and also might encourage other countries to take similar action.

British authorities have turned back more than 50,000 hungry refugees since May 1. From 4,000 to 5,000 crossed over early today and were detained.

There was no sign today that Communist border guards were attempting to stem the flow, although frontier residents reported Wednesday that Chinese guards had fired warning shots after shouting orders to waiting Chinese to return to their homes.

fice yesterday to discover what the Communists themselves thought of the situation he was told by a minor official named Chu that Peking knew all about it. But he received no explanation and he got no definite promise of cooperation in stopping the exodus which has been running at a rate of 5,000 a day.

British Want Controls

This brushoff, however, did not douse British hopes that the Chinese Communists would help solve the problem by reinstituting the border controls that previously prevented a wholesale movement from Communist territory into the British colony.

One theory that the British refuse to accept is that the Chinese Communists have opened the gates in an effort to flood Hong Kong with poverty stricken refugees and eventually cause Britain to abandon the colony.

It is the British belief that Peking welcomes the existence of Hong Kong as a source of foreign currency and a necessary means of communication with that part

Laos Head May Have to Resign

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Royal government officials reported today that the United States has demanded Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, strongman of the pro-Western Vientiane regime, resign his Cabinet posts.

Phoumi, vice premier of Prince Boun Oum's government, controls the royal armed forces as defense and interior minister. The Kennedy administration blames him for blocking negotiations to set up a coalition government in Laos under neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Responsible government officials said W. Averell Harriman, U.S. assistant secretary of state, summoned the Laotian ambassador in Washington and told him the United States has no more confidence in Phoumi.

Laos Leaders Visit In Communist Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Nine members of the Laos neutralist high command began a seven-day visit to Communist Poland on Wednesday.

The military group, which has been touring Eastern Europe, is headed by Lt. Gen. Kong Le, 28, commander of the Laos faction led by Prince Souvanna Phouma.

Kennedy Insists Medical Care Plan Must Come Under Social Security

Hunt Continues For One Body in Airliner Crash

UNIONVILLE, Mo. (AP)—One body was still missing today in the fatal crash of a Continental Airlines jet plane. The other bodies were in an improvised morgue here.

Search for the missing, unidentified victim and for the cause of the accident that tore the big plane apart in the air over southern Iowa continued with teams of federal investigators on hand.

The $3½ million Boeing 707 plane left a trail of wreckage for 60 miles Tuesday night before its main fuselage plummeted into a Missouri farm.

Officials hoped that the taped flight record, salvaged from what was left of the main fuselage and sent to Kansas City, would afford some clue.

Federal Aviation Administrator Najeeb Halaby said there was not a shred of evidence that the air-home and outpatient bills with a Justice Department said Wednesday night the flow would begin

Says Critics of Program Talk Through Both Sides of Mouth

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has made his no-compromise stand on medical care for the aged more emphatic than before.

He insists on weaving it into the Social Security system. He says the public wants it that way.

Firing another broadside at the American Medical Association Wednesday, Kennedy repeated his prediction that Congress will adopt his plan this year if it reaches the House and Senate floors. And he contended that despite AMA opposition, "more and more doctors are supporting it."

Assails Critics of Plan

Kennedy heatedly attacked the AMA and Republican critics of his medical care program at his news conference—a conference dominated by his strong views on the legislative controversy of 1962. The questioning elicited these comments and charges:

Kennedy said he does not plan to follow up his current proposal to pay for hospital, nursing and outpatient bills with a Justice Department said Wednesday night the flow would begin

State Paper Head Urges Free Trade

Samuel Casey Calls for Truly Reciprocal Tariff Reductions

A spokesman for Wisconsin Paper Manufacturers Association called for "free trade in pulp" per manufacturers this morning.

Casey is the retiring general chairman of the information service, an association of major pulp and paper manufacturing firms. He recently returned from a tour of Europe.

"We are willing to compete on an equal basis with pulp and paper manufacturers anywhere and everywhere," he said. "We are ready to accept tariff reductions on a give-and-take basis—right down to zero."

Directed at Bill

Casey's remarks were primarily directed at the European Common Market and President Kennedy's Trade Expansion Bill, now under hot discussion in Congress. Kennedy's bill, which would give the president wide latitude in cut-

Eight Oshkosh High Students Treated for TB

62 Who Reacted Negative in Fall Test Positive May 8

OSHKOSH—Three Oshkosh High School students have been admitted to Sunnyview Sanatorium since Jan. 1, a fourth student was admitted last week and four more are in the process of being admitted for tuberculosis treatment. Oshkosh health department officials have reported.

In addition to the active cases, Mrs. Carolyn Samuel, city nurse, said 77 positive reactors were found during a special skin testing clinic at the high school May 8.

She said 62 had tested negative last October but now test positive, indicating they have come in contact with an active case of tuberculosis.

All of the positive reactors have been X-rayed, she said.

Special Clinic

The first three cases, found as a result of routine testing, prompted the special clinic May 8, which turned up the five latest cases and the high number of positive reactors.

Mrs. Samuel said another special clinic will be held Tuesday to test approximately 300 high school students who were not tested May 8.

She said the outbreak was confined to Oshkosh High School and

President Watches Space Flight by TV

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy looked on by television today as astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter became America's second man in orbit.

Kennedy saw Carpenter's liftoff on a television set in the bedroom of his living quarters in the executive mansion before walking over to his office.

Overshoots Area About 200 Miles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter successfully orbited the earth three times today and then — after a harrowing 35 minutes when it was not known whether he had survived the reentry — he was sighted sitting in a life raft in the Atlantic ocean.

A Navy P2V Neptune bomber flashed the word that Carpenter apparently was all right after spotting him in the raft some 135 miles northeast of Puerto Rico. Floating nearby was the Aurora 7 spacecraft which had carried him three times around the globe in 4 hours and 56 minutes at 17,532 miles an hour.

The capsule overshoot its intended landing area by 200 miles and Carpenter apparently decided to leave it and wait out recovery in the one-man inflatable life raft which he carried aboard the capsule.

An Air Force SA16 seaplane reached the scene at 2:30 p.m. to pick up Carpenter. The plane reported that Carpenter was waving his arms at all the aircraft circling overhead, as it approached for a landing. Seas were reported calm.

The SA16 reported three paramedics were with Carpenter, indicating that a third had been dropped from the air rescue plane.

The Destroyer Pierce was en route to the scene to pick up the Aurora 7 spacecraft.

A short time before the Navy Neptune had provided the first hope that Carpenter's capsule had survived the searing reentry. The plane, equipped with radar and other electronic search gear, picked up signals from a radio homing beacon similar to that on the Aurora 7 capsule.

At first it was not known whether the signal came from Aurora 7, but the plane continued zeroing in on it. Then came the report of the sighting of Carpenter and the capsule.

There had been some fear earlier that perhaps the 37-year-old Navy lieutenant commander had not survived the blazing reentry. Radio communications were blacked out during the most critical part of the reentry phase and no further contact was made with Carpenter until he was sighted by the Navy plane.

Rapid fuel consumption in his Aurora 7 spaceship caused great concern during his second orbit. But after careful consultation with the pilot, the Mercury control center reported:

Officials detected fast consumption of the fuel shortly after the second orbit began and told Carpenter to begin using his manual control system at that time to conserve the valuable hydrogen peroxide.

This is used to control the attitude of the craft.

Apparently he did not hear the original order, which came from the Canary Island tracking station, and it had to be repeated by two posts in Australia, Muchea and Woomera. As he crossed the Pacific toward the west coast of the United States, Mercury officials made checks with Carpenter on the status of his fuel.

Told to Proceed

He reported there was enough to complete a three-orbit mission and the order was given to proceed. As he passed over Point Arguello, Carpenter told astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. who is stationed there that he again noted "snowflakes."

"There are more of those white particles," Carpenter told Shepard. "They appear to be traveling exactly my speed. There's one drifting off and it appears to be going even faster."

He said he did not see them in the great numbers that John H. Glenn Jr., America's first man in orbit, saw his famous fireflies.

As he passed over Cape Canaveral just before entering the third orbit, he attempted to jettison a

Recovery Ships Wait for Landing

Giant Armada Stretches Like Lifeline to Wait for Capsule Containing Carpenter to Land

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An armada including almost everything from outboards to aircraft carriers was spread down the Atlantic Missile Range today to wait for one Navy lieutenant commander to return from space. But three proud ships were missing.

The Mercury recovery force assigned to pick up astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter from the Atlantic included 20 ships, more than 70 aircraft, and several small boats for operations close to shore.

In command was Rear Adm John L. Chew, commander of the Navy's Destroyer Flotilla Four. He was assigned to supervise the recovery from a room in the

Not Available

Unavailable to the force because of other duties were USS Nautilus, the destroyer which lifted Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. and his Friend-ship 7 spacecraft out of the Atlantic 300 miles south east of the Cape last Feb. 20 at the end of his three-orbit ride.

USS Randolph, the carrier that dispatched helicopters to pluck Air Force Capt. Virgil L. (Gus) Grissom to safety last July 21 after his suborbital ride. His capsule sank when a side hatch blew open prematurely.

USS Lake Champlain, the carrier which sent helicopters to pick up Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. at the end of the nation's first manned space flight on May 5, 1961.

A Navy spokesman at Norfolk, Va., said the three ships were not excluded purposely.

Like A Lifeline
The recovery force was like a lifeline anchored almost at the launching pad and stretching through the areas where Carpenter's Aurora 7 spacecraft was likely to land.

In case of some accident on the launch pad or moments after lift off, a small force under command of Lt. Col. Harry E. Cannon of the Air Force was ready to rescue Carpenter. Cannon's command consisted of four helicopters, three Army LARCs (light amphibious vehicles) and a number of small boats.

Capt. A. F. Blair commanded the group of Navy ships deployed from deepwater just off-shore from the vicinity of Bermuda—an area where an astronaut would splash down, if something went wrong before his craft could be inserted into orbit.

Blair's command includes the USS Swerve, USS Sturdy, USS Opportune, USS English, USS Hank, USS Dewey and four aircraft.

Spotted in an area from Bermuda to about half way across the Atlantic, and including the one orbit landing area—500 miles east of Bermuda, was a force commanded by Capt. C. E. Pond. It included USS Wren, USS Sole, USS Barton, USS Spiegel Grove, and 14 aircraft.

More Forces
Capt. W. W. Spears commanded a force covering the Eastern Atlantic along the first orbit track. It included USS Hunt, USS Eloquent, USS Remy and 16 aircraft. A small force consisting of the USS Massey and four aircraft was assigned to cover an area near the Canary Islands. Cmdr. R. N. Cook was in command.

In case the flight ended after two orbits, a force under the command of Capt. R. E. Sinnott was responsible for picking up Carpenter about 500 miles south of Bermuda. It consists of the USS Fred T. Berry, USS Donner, and six aircraft.

Rear Adm. E. R. Eastwood commanded the force assigned to pick up Carpenter about 800 miles southeast of the Cape at the end of three full orbits.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Shooting an astronaut into orbit calls for precise aim. And an electronic gun barrel here helps turn the trick.

This is a pencil-thin beam of radio waves which indicate the position and speed of the Atlas booster right after blast-off, and feed guidance commands to the rocket.

The system makes instantaneous, last-second corrections early in powered flight, until the missile passes out of the electronic gun barrel in the atmosphere over the Atlantic Missile Range.

Carefully Planned
The whole flight path is carefully planned and programmed into a guidance computer aboard the Atlas before blast-off.

Then the radio sightings, functioning like the barrel of a rifle, set in on hairline course.

The radio-command guidance system, developed by General Electric, consists of a tracking radar, radio transponders or two-way radios, a velocity measuring system on the ground, and a computer.

Transponders in the Atlas send signals back to the tracking radar and the computer figures out instantly whether the booster's course and speed are correct, and

Former Head Of Exchange Hits Treasury

Chicago Financier Claims Figures of Dillon Incorrect

Chicago Daily News Service

CHICAGO — The former chairman of the Midwest Stock Exchange today contradicted Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon and again denied there is a gap between total dividends and those on which taxes are paid.

The rebuttal came from George F. Barnes, senior partner of Wayne Hummer & Co., in the continuing controversy over whether the proposed withholding tax on dividends, now before Congress, is necessary.

According to the Treasury, $225,000,000 in dividends went undeclared by taxpayers in 1960.

Barnes earlier had charged that this so-called dividend gap was a "phantom" and could easily be accounted for by dividends received by tax-exempt organizations and not those on which taxes are dodged.

Dillon then testified before the Senate Finance Committee that Barnes was way out of line. He said that nearly all common stocks held by tax-exempt institutions were shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

O. N. Big Board
Holdings of the tax-exempt organizations outside the Big Board represent only 16 per cent of the NYSE's total, not 42 per cent as Barnes said, according to Dillon.

Barnes, using 1959 statistics, said that dividends to the tax-exempt institutions in that year totaled $16 billion, more than covering the treasury's so-called gap of over $900,000,000.

The treasury, discounting that many other listed and unlisted stocks were held by the tax-exempt, said, however, only $850,000,000 in dividends were paid that year to the tax-free institutions.

Barnes' rebuttal, in a letter to Dillon, cited some figures "to demonstrate the inaccuracy" of the Secretary's stand that nearly all common stocks held by the tax-exempts are listed on the NYSE.

mand of Capt. R. E. Sinnott was responsible for picking up Carpenter about 500 miles south of Bermuda. It consists of the USS Fred T. Berry, USS Donner, and six aircraft.

Rear Adm. E. R. Eastwood commanded the force assigned to pick up Carpenter about 800 miles southeast of the Cape at the end of three full orbits.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — If not, figures out the corrections which are flashed as steering commands to the booster.

No further aiming can be done after the booster passes out of the "gun barrel." The guidance system aboard the Atlas cuts off the engines when the rocket has reached proper velocity to go into orbit. Soon afterward, the Atlas is cut loose from the space capsule, and the astronaut starts zooming around the world.

2 Polaris Missiles Fired in Pacific
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The nuclear submarine Thomas Edison fired two Polaris missiles from below the Atlantic surface on Wednesday. Both traveled more than 1,500 miles and both shots were declared successful.

The firings, about two hours apart, were the first for the Edison.

Two Detectives Slain

Accused Slayer Surrenders After Giving His Story to Newspaper

NEW YORK (AP)—Police have been used in a getaway search was under way. Later that day, the alleged triggerman accused of staging the murders of two city detectives in a $4,000 holdup of a tobacco company with Rosenberg, was caught in a motel in a Chicago suburb.

The one who hid out the longest — Jerome Rosenberg — surrendered Wednesday night to the New York Daily News in its Manhattan headquarters.

Notified by the News, Assistant Chief Inspector Raymond V. Martin picked up Rosenberg in the editorial department and had him taken under heavy guard to a Brooklyn police station.

Police booked Rosenberg on a homicide charge shortly before dawn, after he had been questioned through the night and early morning and viewed by witnesses of last Friday's holdup. Detectives said he said he is innocent.

Told Surrender
Rosenberg's surrender — described in a copyright story in the News — came five days and a few hours after the murders, and on Rosenberg's 25th birthday.

Police revealed last Monday that they knew the identities of the three bandits and that a nationwide search was under way.

Record Plunge Into Ocean Reported by French Naval Team
ONAGAWA, Japan (AP) — The French navy's bathyscaphe "Archimede" descended to a depth of 15,744 feet Tuesday in the Pacific Ocean off Japan's Honshu Island, a record plunge in those virtually unexplored depths.

The dive was the first in a series by a French-Japanese exploration team in the Japan Deep, or trench, where depths of more than 34,000 feet have been recorded in soundings.

Man's deepest descent was made Jan. 23, 1960, by the U.S. Navy's bathyscaphe "Trieste," which dived 35,000 feet in the Marianas Trench of the Pacific.

Students rebelled at the anti-Bermuda regulation and used bare legs as "a symbol of student protest," said Terry Roach, 19, (the one in kilts).

The word was out today that students in shorts will be barred from class. "If we back out now," said Roach, "it will look as if we haven't the courage of our convictions."

Republican Senator Sees Passage of Aid For Medical Care

Javits Says Social Security Will be Used to Finance Bill

Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Nobody can say with any certainty what the effect on Congress is going to be of the public battle now raging over medical care for the elderly.

A Republican senator, however, believes that President Kennedy already has won an important point.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York is convinced that Social Security financing will be a part of any program that is passed.

This principle is contained in the King-Anderson bill, which the Administration wants Congress to pass.

A chain reaction in the battle of words over the bill appears to have been set in motion by the President's telecast Sunday to a series of nationwide rallies.

The American Medical Association came back with a sharply worded counterattack Monday night in half an hour of purchased time on a national network.

Wants Reply
Now the senior citizens' group that the President addressed Sunday urgently desires to react to the AMA reaction.

Aime J. Foran, chairman of the National Council of Senior Citizens, hopes to finance a televised reply by raising $100,000 in dimes.

Mr. Kennedy apparently is not too happy with the public's response since the battle was joined Sunday. The mail received to date, he told a news conference, is about evenly divided.

He said, is not a true "indicator of the feelings of the people."

He predicted once again that if the bill reaches the floor of Congress this year "it will pass."

He also repeated his familiar position on the question of financing. He declared that he would not accept any compromise on medical care that did not include Social Security financing, since this was the heart of the Administration proposal.

If Sen. Javits is right, however, Mr. Kennedy has no need to worry on this score. The senator told a National Press Club audience, "by now, the big fight is over the dam. A bill cannot be passed that does not provide for financing under the Social Security system."

Javits also thinks that the national debate that has been engendered over medical care is going to have an influence on the Congress. "A bill is much likelier to pass now than was thought possible at one time," he said.

The senator's argument is that the president can not pick up the Republican votes he will need to pass the bill unless he will agree to certain changes in it.

Javits accepts the principle of Social Security financing. He also acknowledges that the King-Anderson bill, while "not the best," must serve as the basis for any congressional action.

But he is going to "fight hard," he said, to make what he regards as necessary changes in it. A bill he has introduced would cover all persons 65 or over, not just those who qualify under Social Security.

Instead of limiting the program to hospital and nursing home care, he would include physicians' services as well.

Chief Justice Broadfoot

The passing of Grover L. Broadfoot, a man who spent all his adult life in public affairs and rose to be chief justice of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, probably marks the ending of an era in Wisconsin public life.

Grover Broadfoot was a country lawyer and politician of the kind that is not likely to rise again to the pinnacle of the judiciary in this rapidly changing and growing state. Every other judge of the present Wisconsin court, for example, has a thoroughly urban background. Judge Broadfoot regarded the little town of Mondovi, in the far western part of Wisconsin, as his home and although he had been in Madison for many years, he kept his law office open there as he had during the earlier years of his life, and kept title to his old home.

It is perhaps not improper or disrespectful to relate that some of the other judges of the state court, in the cloistered privacy of their chambers in the quiet judicial wing of the capitol, valued Judge Broadfoot's counsel and experience, aside from his qualities as a professional student of the law, precisely because of the richness of his experiences in rural and small town life.

Controversies that run the gamut of human fallibility come to the state tribunal. Who on the court would feel competent to make a judgment on something as esoteric as town board psychology, or even the operations of a rural county board, the infinite complexities in the financing of livestock sales, and farm machinery, and the rest, except for Grover Broadfoot who had dealt with them for half of an adult lifetime as a village lawyer?

The small town lawyer is not only a technical adviser. He is friend and confidant to his clientele. He is a leader by definition. The city lawyer is often, by necessity if not by choice, confined in his big office. The country lawyer is a contributing part of the vibrant life of his Main Street, a man who is loved and trusted not so much for the prestige of his law school, as for his humanity and his wisdom and his understanding of the foibles of his fellows.

Such a man was Chief Justice Broadfoot, and the Wisconsin Supreme Court, we regretfully surmise, is not likely to see his kind again.

Arguments for the Medicare Bill

In President Kennedy's presentation for his medical care for the aged program, he used at least two of the arguments which opponents of the bill have been using against it.

The President said he had heard that a British doctor was to make a speech soon opposing the medicare bill by telling the faults of the British medical program. President Kennedy suggested that he should talk to the British about it because the proposed American measure has nothing in common with the British program. The American program, said the President, provides help for persons over 65 years of age while the British plan provides all medical care from the cradle to the grave.

A little later, the President remarked that America is 30 years behind European countries in providing medical care. He said the British and the other countries of Europe had the program 30 years ago which we now propose. This, it seems, is just what the American Medical Society is using as one of its principal arguments against the bill. That is, that once a program such as the Kennedy bill is started, it continues to grow until complete socialized medicine follows in its wake. Quite obviously that is what happened in Great Britain.

Dope Flows From Southeast Asia

The shooting war across old Indo-China, in which our troops are becoming increasingly engaged, is important to the integrity of southeastern Asia and conceivably could be the key to world peace.

The canvas dominated by the ancient swamps, hills and forests of Laos, Viet Nam, Thailand and Cambodia is worthy of the greatest attention.

Even a chance to throw up a backfire against a conflagration that could set off a nuclear holocaust is reason enough for any sacrifice necessary.

The days of isolationism are far enough in the past to obviate any need to explain why guerrilla warfare thousands of miles from home must be of great concern to us, but if there is a remnant of that feeling remaining there are reasons closer to home to give moment to the need to stand firm on the borders of Red China—perhaps firmer than we are.

Old Indo-China is more than the scene of Communist aggression. It is the open door through which most of the world's narcotics ooze into the slimy channels leading to our very heartland, softening, corrupting, degrading.

The leeches who feed on the victims of the dope habit are a fraternity that knows no boundary. They are as internationally dangerous as the world-wide conspiracy of Communism.

And they are fed and encouraged by the red monsters—appropriate bedfellows.

Auto Age Threatening
Detroit's Downtown

BY SHERWOOD ROSS
Chicago Daily News Service

DETROIT — The motor city's downtown is reeling under the impact of the auto age.

Ironically, downtown merchants of the city that gave America Ford, Chrysler and Cadillac today are imperiled by the suburban shift that the motor car made possible.

Even the investment of $800,000,000 in a civic center skyscraper, banks and utility buildings, its urban heart since 1950, hasn't helped the downtown stores.

For instance, retail sales since then have fallen off by 50 per cent. Downtown merchants in 1948 captured 15 per cent of their metropolitan areas retail sales, today they do but 7.6 per cent of the retail business "and

One of the major growing areas of the opium poppy lies in the southern part of Red China, adjacent and overlapping into Communist controlled areas of Laos and Viet Nam as well as parts of Burma and Thailand.

Out of the ports of these countries flows the opium, heroin and morphine into Indonesia, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Japan, even Formosa and into the United States.

The product is amenable to countless cuttings, spreading the venom into astronomical proportions and making the trade astonishingly profitable, even down to the sniffing wretch haunting the dens of the damned to feed the residents there with the poison their wracked bodies demand for the torment they mistake for surcease.

But the wealth is only secondary to the masters of the Red monster. Their chief profit comes in the degradation they can spread with their ungodly dust.

The isolationists may shy at sacrifice in the chance—even good—of raising a defense against fiery death, but if the far-distant fighting can stop up a mainstream of narcotics, the sacrifice takes on real meaning. It could raise a cry for even more sacrifice.

When the Viet Cong begins to look like the link in the narcotic chain it really is, the fight doesn't seem so far away.

major suburban outlets and are planning two more.

"Now Hudson does 50 per cent of its business in the suburbs," Delbridge said, "and downtown is hurting."

Will Redevelop

But Detroiters apparently have been mulling over Chicago planner Daniel Burnham's injunction to "make no little plans." If they have their way, the worst effects of the auto age will be toned down.

One plan is to redevelop the blighted area adjacent to the downtown on a grand scale.

In an address to Action, Inc., a national council devoted to good cities meeting at Wayne University here, Detroit city Planning Director Charles A. Blessing described the city's plans to rehabilitate a 30 square mile central area to provide "the finest housing" for 300,000 people by the year 2,000.

He said the city's master plan, devised in 1950, calls for eventual expansion of Wayne University, near the heart of downtown, into a facility providing for 55,000 students, a

Sunday's Letter About Medicare
Prompts Questions on Each Item

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I enjoyed Mrs. Veum's letter (Sun. May 20) describing the noble efforts of some doctors "to preserve the U. S. as a federal republic." It is reassuring to see how they leap into the fray, in the gallant tradition of the A.M.A., pushing their wives or patients, as in New Jersey, out in front of them.

It was, however, a bit of a strain at times to follow Mrs. Veum's logic. I was left with a few questions, roughly one for each point she raised:

1. With the vast majority of our citizens paying their taxes and Social Security under withholding, and therefore fully paid up at any time, isn't it a little silly to talk about property being "consecrated to pay them?" The same emotional argument could be used to justify dropping all taxes.

2. If "the burden of taxation will fall upon the young and middle-aged taxpayers", then why all this concern by doctors? By what right do they presume to tell us where we must get the money to pay our hospital bills or doctor bills, for that matter?

3. Wouldn't the "astronomical costs" of this bill be even worse if time were spent to investigate every claim for "need"? One might just as reasonably admit to the public schools only those children who can't afford private schools. Isn't it much simpler and just as fair, to let everybody able pay, and everybody share? Isn't this system actually closer to the private insurance plans so loved by doctors?

4. Isn't it a blatantly unfair comparison to say that "the economic status of the aged—is better than that of other groups"? They certainly had better own their own homes by retirement time, or they'd never be able to own them. Isn't the purpose of the King-Anderson bill to protect their ownership of these homes?

5. Under point No. 2 you state that the costs would fall upon the young, yet now you worry that the aged will "be penalized."

Which is it? And in what sense are the "more resourceful of the aged" penalized, merely because we help their less fortunate brethren? Recalling Christ's parable of the vineyard, are they "envious because 'we are' generous"?

6. Would the Kerr-Mills bill have been put into effect in such a "short time" or ever, except as an attempt to frustrate such positive approaches as the King-Anderson bill?

7. You say nothing new here about "means", so I refer you back to point No. 3 concerning "need".

8. If the government is right in limiting the absolute power of unions and business trusts, why not that most powerful union and trust, the A.M.A.? Is a monopoly on steel more important than a strangle-hold on our lives? Doesn't the attitude of the New Jersey physicians clearly demonstrate the need for control over people who would put their personal interests over the lives of fellow humans?

9. What good is "freedom of choice" when the chief basis of an intelligent choice, the abilities of the various doctors, is

Feels Dr. Annis Won
Medical Care Debate

From Chicago Tribune

President Kennedy built himself a reputation as a debater during the Presidential campaign but, in our judgment, he lost the debate against Dr. Edward R. Annis on the merits of the King-Anderson bill.

He lost it for a number of reasons but chiefly because the facts favored Dr. Annis' side in the controversy over the means of meeting the medical needs of the elderly.

Dr. Annis argued with great effect that the measure favored by the President didn't, in fact, take care of all the needy over 65. The beneficiaries would be restricted to those within an estimated 3 million persons unprotected, including, as the Quoted from the Appleton Motor for May 22, 1862.

North Carolina has held a convention of its citizens and pronounced against giving further aid to the rebellion, thus virtually returning to the Union.

Gov. Clark has refused to furnish any more troops to Jeff Davis and has recalled all the North Carolina soldiers now in the rebel army.

The Legislature of Virginia has appropriated $200,000 to remove the women and children and decrepit persons from Richmond to a place of safety. The rebel army was reported to be encamped within a few miles of Richmond.

The Vicksburg, Va., Citizen of the 13th says women and children are being removed from the city on the advice of Gen. Smith, in view of the approaching conflict with the Union enemy.

State Building Debt
Set at $82,000,000

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — One of the always dubious claims that was made for the device of dummy corporation borrowing in the state government was that it would enable the state to preserve its debt-free status as far as national reputation and publicity are concerned.

Wyngaard

Normally the indices of state debt experience relate to the full faith and credit bonds of a commonwealth, those issued under constitutional sanction. For a period of some years the rule applied to Wisconsin, which had been issuing debentures through the quasi-public building corporations in a kind of political circumlocution, but which were not listed in the national summaries of state fiscal reports.

Thus Wisconsin appeared to the eyes of the country as a prudent and even conservative state, with respect to its financial management.

But the system has changed. Recent national comparisons of state debt structure have included Wisconsin, in spite of its constitutional prohibition against debt. The reporting services, including those of the federal government, have apparently concluded that a state that has indulged extra constitutional debt to the extent that has Wisconsin cannot truly be said to be debt free.

THE EXCUSES
But meanwhile, one of the justifications for the curious building corporation device has been refuted for all time.

Another reason for doubt about the validity of the building corporation device was contained in a speech to the League of Women Voters convention the other day by an officer of the state building commission.

He related that the total of building corporation debt thus far assumed by the state of Wisconsin, in spite of the literal provision of the constitution to the contrary, is $82,000,000. He could have gone on to say that it is going to be considerably higher, according to recent discussions and actions of the building commission he serves.

But the interesting thing was that he offered the fact as a piece of news, his audience received it in the nature of a revelation, and the news correspondents who listened were so impressed or surprised also that they headed their dispatches with the statement.

There is indicated here one of the most questionable characteristics of the debt policy of the state — that it is being carried on without the full awareness of the people whose resources are being committed, and if not actually in a surreptitious manner, at least in a manner far removed from that which would be involved in regular state bond issues. Compare the publicity and discussion in the typical community about a school bond issue, for example, with the casual and almost ignored bonding process of the building commission.

THE ISSUE NEARS
The state is nearing the time of decision on the debt issue which has not yet been faced squarely either by its electorate, or its legislative representatives.

The showdown probably will come in the next legislature, and especially if there is a Republican administration in power at that time. It is an unfortunate fact that a Democrat finds this issue a more difficult one to stand upon than a Republican — because of the manner in which the spending issue has been drawn historically between the Wisconsin parties in the past.

But there are responsible Republicans of stature in the business community, men of proved prudence in their economic judgments, who will be involved if a Republican administration comes to power. They will demonstrate that the state cannot buy the new plant it needs for a decade of critical growth of essential services unless it supplements, current taxation with long-term borrowing.

Carpenter Thankful to be Taken From Duty on Aircraft Carriers

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — When Malcolm Scott Carpenter in the Navy V-5 flight training was selected in 1959 as one of the program seven Mercury astronauts, he was thankful to be rescued from what he considered a grueling assignment—a two-year tour of duty on an aircraft carrier.

On the carrier, he would face long periods away from his family and the disappointing prospect of a nonflying job. The Mercury orders arrived just two days before the ship was to depart San Diego.

When the carrier commander asked him what he was going to do, Carpenter replied: "Ride the nose cone of an Atlas three times around the earth."

But Amazed

"I remember being a little amazed at my own words," Carpenter said recently. "I knew little about the program then. But now I know a good deal more, but the whole idea fills me with awe."

Carpenter, 37, a Navy lieutenant commander, was thrust suddenly into the pilot role for the second U.S. manned orbit flight last March 15 when it was disclosed that the chosen astronaut Air Force Maj. Dorland K. Slayton had minor heart trouble. Carpenter had minor back-up pilot for Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr.'s orbital flight on Feb. 20.

The handsome crew chief Carpenter has been a vital member of the astronaut team. His specialties are navigation and communications, and he has worked extensively with engineers and technicians to develop a foolproof communications system for the Mercury capsules.

Carpenter is an exemplary citizen now, but it took him a little time to find himself. He said recently that in his youth he was a drifter and "sort of a no good" in his home town of Boulder, Colo., where he was born May 1, 1925.

No Student

"I didn't study hard and I had to quit high school football because I couldn't devote myself to learning the plays," he said. "I stole things from stores and I hand down its ruling Tuesday in skin diving, archery and water was just drifting through sort of a no good."

After high school graduation in 1943 he enlisted in the Navy and began the dangerous job of working the links out of some of the nation's newest, fastest fighting planes.

Rene, a pretty blonde, recalls some anxious moments when he was a test pilot at Patuxent River. Mid She said she was nervous every time he didn't show up at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner.

But she says they have discussed the dangers of his job and have learned to live with them. They spend little time worrying—even about the hazards of space flight.

3 Credits Short

He came within three credit hours of earning a degree in aeronautical engineering from Colorado in 1949 but encountered difficulty with a course in heat transfer. Before he could pick up the credit, he married and raised his wife, Rene, also a Colorado student and rejoined the Navy.

After graduation from the Navy test pilot school in 1954, Carpenter

Plans Annual Youth Sunday

Members of Faith Lutheran Church will observe the annual Youth Sunday of the congregation this Sunday. The services will take special note of junior and senior high school graduates and confirmed youth of the congregation. Youth of the congregation will serve as ushers.

Confirmed youth of the congregation and their parents will gather for the church's annual youth banquet at 5:15 p.m. Richard Wolter will serve as master of ceremonies.

Included in the program is a play directed by Mrs. Ralph Krause and produced by the Walter League of the congregation.

A special feature will be a lecture on "Understanding Your Teen-Ager" by Dr. Martin P. Simon of Wheaton, Ill., nationally known author and lecturer on Christian family life. The lecture at 7:15 p.m. in the church, will be open to all members of the congregation and to the general public.

Profile Writer

Carpenter and Rene, who also is from Boulder, are very close and write lengthy letters to one another when separated. He writes in detail about his Project Mercury work and once penned 17 pages.

Soon after he had gone to Washington for one of his first briefings as an astronaut, Rene wrote him: "I think you were born for this, and God knows I'd rather have you in space than at sea. I'm so darn happy and proud of you."

With four children, they have the largest family of any of the astronauts. The youngsters are Mark Scott, 12; Robin Jay, 10; Kristine Elaine, 6; and Candace Novon, 5. A fifth child, a 6-month-old son, died in 1951.

Green-eyed Rene, fulfilling a long-time desire, came to nearly Cocoa Beach with the children to be close when Carpenter is rocketed toward space. This is the first astronaut family to be in the Cape area at launch time.

There's nothing at all like it," Rene says, "to stand on the beach and see it going up—and the prayerful attitude of the crowd."

She said her husband wanted the sons, Scott and Jay, to witness the launching first hand. Although daughters are not as space conscious, he wanted them to be nearby also.

Carpenter is devoted to the children and spends as much of his free time as possible, with them at their home at Langley Air Force Base, Va. His hobbies are skin diving, archery and water skiing.

He is an Episcopalian who has "an abiding faith which sustains me at all times."

New Conservative Unit Will Try to Unseat GOP 'Liberals' in N. Y.

Group Plans to Run 'Taft Type' Candidates; Says Response Good

NEW YORK (AP) — A newly formed Conservative party is stepping up efforts to unseat Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., this fall.

It says it intends to run "Taft-type" candidates against them on the ground that they are too liberal politically, to represent traditional Republicanism.

The registered Republicans who head the new party are pushing their campaign by mail and on the campaign tours through the state.

Rockefeller, a potential contender for the 1964 presidential nomination, was elected governor by a margin of 573,000 votes in 1960.

Initial Response

With the election six months away, there was no accurate forecast of what impact the new party might have. It faces technical problems first in getting on the ballot. But it claims the initial response to the movement has been electrifying.

Leaders of the movement concede that if they cut heavily into tradition of the last 100 years, the he adds.

Rockefeller has not commented on the state's new movement but But they hold that this would have spoken out against what he be a temporary loss and that the Republicans would turn to Conservative candidates to win the next state elections.

The Conservatives expect to name their candidates by late June.

New Deal Thinking

Rockefeller is an announced candidate for re-election. Javits is expected to seek a second term. The Democrats have not settled on their candidates.

Kieran O'Doherty, Conservative party chairman, likens the political thinking of Rockefeller to the New Deal, and that of Javits to the Americans for Democratic Action.

O'Doherty says his group endorses the principles of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, known as "Mr. Republican."

Lawrence Says

Care for Aged Should be Paid For by Taxes

Direct Appropriation Not Social Security Should Foot Bills

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Everybody is for medical care for the aged. Republicans and Democrats, critics and advocates of specific legislation alike — all recognize that the sick must be cared for always.

The real debate is over what method, what plan, what means of financing shall be adopted. Demagoguery will not help to find the solution.

President Kennedy's speech on Sunday was not an adequate outline of the basic issues. He talked off-the-cuff on a television hookup and said some things he never would have said if he had prepared his speech in advance.

Lawrence

There were, for instance, sentences like these:

"I visited twice, yesterday and once today, a hospital, where doctors labor for a long time, to visit my father. It isn't easy — it isn't easy. He can pay his bills, but otherwise I would be. And I'm not as well off as he is. But what happens to him and to others when they put their life savings in, in a short time?"

It so happens that the elder Kennedy is reportedly worth more than $100 million, and the President himself, it has been estimated in the press reports, is worth a sum way up in the millions — some say $10 million.

The above quotation might give the impression that the President was worrying about hardships upon the wealthy. Actually, he wasn't. Later on, in the same speech, he said the millionaires would not mind contributing $12 a month to Social Security and that, anyway, "the national government, through the tax laws, already takes care of them, because over 65 they can deduct all their medical expenses."

The President certainly wasn't describing a situation analogous to that which confronts many people. His plan calls for an increase in Social Security taxes — in some cases by as much as 17 per cent. The new tax will apply to 74,000,000 persons under Social Security.

No Care

All this is designed to take care of the minority who may get sick in old age and have to go to a hospital or nursing home. The new project, however, doesn't provide payments for doctors' bills, but only hospital costs and nursing care over and above the first $50.

Opponents insist that the needy can be taken care of by a direct appropriation by Congress each year without raising the Social Security taxes. The objection of the President to this is that it requires a "means test," or what he called in his Sunday speech a "pauper's oath."

But the fact is that the document signed by the patient would be confidential. It's like his income tax return, which certainly is not open to public view.

Many persons who "go on relief" have to sign certain papers. They don't seem to mind a "means test." The government could, of course, designate by another name the money to cover the needy.

It could be called a "refund" on previously paid taxes. Persons who are 65 years of age or over and who now are without means would hardly object to a "refund" of what they have paid before over the years to cover a variety of social-welfare programs of the government that didn't benefit them directly.

There's a law on the statute books now to take care of the aged who are sick. It is called the Kerr-Mills bill, passed in 1960. It matches funds put up by the states to care for those who cannot pay their medical bills. It covers doctors and nursing as well as hospital bills. It is in operation in many states.

Funds for hospital bills for the aged can be provided through private insurance or from general welfare taxes and thus avoid another cut in "take-home pay" for the workers of America. The average employee realistically considers his

"take-home pay" as the net amount available to him for current expenses, whether he or she is 21 years old or 60.

The added Social Security tax for medical care for the aged is estimated at $1.6 billion for the first year and would rise to $1.9 billion in five years. This means that the total "take-home pay" of the employee and the profits of corporations will be cut by that amount. For the employer pays half of the extra social security tax increase.

Also, when an item of $1.6 billion is added to wage costs in the national economy, it is eventually reflected in higher wages and higher prices. Workers are promptly told by the labor unions that the cut in "take-home pay" will be offset by an increase in wages.

A direct appropriation by Congress could eventually mean less expense than the Social Security levy. It could be imposed through the general tax structure on those who could best afford to pay it. The administration plan, moreover, doesn't cover everybody. There are, for instance, 9,000,000 persons in the labor force, including the self-employed, who are not covered now by Social Security. Also, about 3,000,000 individuals already 65 years of age or older are not eligible for Social Security benefits and would receive no medical care aid under the Kennedy plan.

So it isn't a case of hard-hearted folks opposing medical care for the aged. Everybody is in favor of this benefit. But it is a case of hard-hearted financing that will put the least burden on the middle-aged and the young, so many of whom for long years ahead are going to be paying to the government money for some things their families may never need. Systems of voluntary insurance are popular nowadays and are gradually covering more and more people.

There is supposed to be political mileage, however, for the administration in raising the issue of "medical care for the aged" and giving the impression that the critics are cruel persons who are opposed to providing such care.

Appleton May Hire Welfare Case Worker

A part time case worker for the Appleton welfare department was approved by the welfare and ordinance committee Tuesday night, subject to similar approval of the finance and personnel committees.

Welfare Director Merton Ehrlicke has been requesting a case worker, as did his predecessor, Melville Flagstad.

The case load in the welfare office averages from about 60 to 80 a month, depending on seasonal labor market changes and other circumstances.

Ehrlicke, like Flagstad, says that he himself cannot do all the case work alone.

Increased efforts are needed, Ehrlicke says, to try to make welfare clients self supporting and vate insurance or from general welfare taxes and thus avoid another cut in "take-home pay" for the workers of America. The case worker will visit homes to try to help clients and will make investigations.

Scholarship Renewed For Appleton Girl

The 1959 scholarship award of $600 by Allis-Chalmers to Pamela Gruhn, 1515 W. Brewster St., has been renewed by the scholarship committee. Pamela, whose father, H. L. Appleton Man Wins 'Mr. Badger Jaycee' Award at Convention

Don C. Smith, Appleton, was named "Mr. Badger Jaycee" at the Jaycees' state convention in Milwaukee. He is manager of the Appleton Jaycees placed in seven out of nine categories for recognition of work done in project areas, and were first in agricultural activities.

Smith has lived in Appleton for seven years, and has been a Jaycee for six years. He will attend the national convention in Las Vegas in June.

The award has been won once before by an Appleton man. William Selle received it in 1959. The Appleton Jaycees placed in seven out of nine categories for recognition of work done in project areas, and were first in agricultural activities.

A new award for active Jaycees went to four Appleton men — Smith, Long, Herring and John Powers. Appleton, was Ayers.

Over Thousand Questioned in Estes Inquiry

Many Others on List; FBI Enters Texas Death Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators disclosed today their agents have questioned more than 1,000 persons in the widening Billie Sol Estes case.

And, said the informant, many more will be questioned before the Senate Investigations subcommittee is ready to start its hearings into whether Washington influence helped Estes build his rickety business empire.

The report came after President Kennedy related at a news conference Wednesday that the FBI has moved into the investigation of the mysterious death of Henry Marshall, a Texas farm official, shot to death a year ago while checking into Estes' dealings under the government cotton program.

No FBI Comment
The FBI declined to comment on the unusual circumstance of its entry into what normally would be a local police case.

Last June, when Marshall was found dead, shot five times, his death was written off as suicide. But under the pressure of the Estes investigation, his body was exhumed Tuesday for an autopsy in Franklin, Tex. Later the county medical examiner told county grand jurors his preliminary finding was murder.

The examiner, Dr. J. A. Jachimczyk, was expected to make his final report today.

The FBI also had no comment on the case of Howard Pratt, 31, Chicago office manager of Commercial Solvents Corp., found dead in his car Wednesday of carbon monoxide poisoning. The company's financial relations with Estes, who bought great quantities of liquid fertilizer from the chemical firm, are under investigation.

Cryptic Note Studied
The Senate subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said it had no evidence of any link between Estes and Pratt, but would look into the death because of a cryptic note found in Pratt's car which said in part "the burden of guilt is on my shoulders."

Investigators said they doubted Pratt had any connection with Estes.

A House subcommittee headed by Rep. I. H. Fountain, D-N.C., plans to start hearings Monday on the Estes case, with political controversy already swirling about its ears.

Charges "Leak" to Press

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader, accused the subcommittee's staff of leaking to the press what he called politically inspired "petty hinting and subtle innuendo" about two brothers of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

His statements were prompted by a New York Herald Tribune story published Wednesday which quoted an expert on the House subcommittee's staff in connection with reports that the names of Edgar Eisenhower and the late Arthur Eisenhower might figure in the hearings on matters completely unrelated to Estes.

Hits At "Innuendo"

"If there is something to be investigated, by all means let them do so without further delay and stop the petty hinting and subtle innuendo by staff people," Dirksen said. He called the lead a punitive and retaliatory reaction to scandals which have linked the names of some Kennedy administration officials with Estes.

In Tacoma, Wash., Edgar Eisenhower, a lawyer, declared "the whole purpose of this is to take the heat off this administration, to take the heat off this Billie Sol Estes investigation. They are trying to shift attention."

"I don't know anything about the Estes problem except what I have read in the papers. If they are trying to connect me with that situation, it is a great distortion. I never heard of the man ago."

Carpenter Completes 3 Orbits of Earth

balloon which he had towed behind the capsule for one whole orbit. However, he reported the jettison switch failed to operate and he was unable to release the 30-inch sphere.

Reports All Well

Technicians assured him that the balloon would in no way affect the mission and that it would burn up on re-entry into the atmosphere after the third orbit. Performing as if he were right at home in the strange world of weightlessness, Carpenter told astronaut Virgil I. "Gus" Grissom at Cape Canaveral that everything was fine and he was in excellent condition as he sailed over the head at the end of two orbits. Carpenter had ended his first orbit at 9:19 a.m., flashing over Cape Canaveral 99 miles high. The hydrogen peroxide is squirted out from small holes around the surface of the capsule. If the capsule shifts off its planned attitude for some reason, jets fire to push it back on the proper attitude (its angle of relation to the horizon).

Manual Control

The astronaut can control the roll, pitch and yaw of his capsule by using his manual control stick to trigger these jet streams.

As he entered the second orbit, Carpenter was told to assume more manual control of Aurora 7 to conserve the fuel, which is used up more rapidly when the automatic system is operating. By taking manual control, Carpenter could hold a steadier course and thus eliminate some need for firing the fuel jets.

But this would limit the time he had available to perform some of his assigned tasks, just as it did on John H. Glenn Jr.'s orbital flight last Feb. 20.

Glenn had to assume manual control for most of his last two orbits when two of the small jet openings became clogged and upset part of the automatic control system.

As the capsule passed over the Muchea and Woomera tracking posts in Australia on its second orbit, there had been no indication from the Mercury control center that any thought was being ties have completed their inquiry, Kennedy said grain is being shifted from Estes' storage bins into normal channels of trade in a way that will not cost the taxpayers—and with more than usual speed "because of all the circumstances."

Southeast Asia—Remarking that "when you put troops in, they become difficult to take out unless the situation is stable," Kennedy said U.S. troops will remain in Thailand until events justify their withdrawal. An Army group in Thailand doesn't carry ammunition—but the ammunition is there and can be supplied at once if needed, he said.

Debate Possibility

Eisenhower — He and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower are appearing together on a program this week to advocate effective trade legislation, Kennedy said, but as to debating domestic issues with Eisenhower on television during next fall's congressional campaigns: "We will have to wait and see what the situation is."

until I saw his name in the paper." The former president's brother said Fountain invited him to that situation, it is a great distortion. I never heard of the man ago.

given to terminating the flight early.

Carpenter reported he was able to change the attitude of his spacecraft slightly merely by moving his head and arms vigorously.

As he swung into the second orbit, Carpenter released a balloon and plastic confetti from his capsule.

The surface of the balloon was divided into five different segments, each with a different color—orange, white, silver, yellow, and a blue-green phosphorescence which glows at night.

The test will determine which colors man can best sight in space and may aid in selecting colors for vehicles which spacemen may have to approach and rendezvous with for future flights to the moon.

As the balloon inflated, it unlashed a shower of small aluminum-coated plastic discs which were packed in the folds.

Takes Pictures

Carpenter observed and photographed these confetti-like particles to study the behavior of these known objects in space. The purpose was to see if they created a "firefly" effect reported by both Glenn and Soviet cosmonaut Gherman S. Titov on their orbital flights.

As he approached the west coast of the United States, Carpenter reported seeing some white objects streaking past his capsule. From his description they apparently were not the same objects reported by Glenn and Titov.

From the moment of blastoff here, the astronaut reported he was feeling fine.

Glenn proved conclusively that man can operate in the strange world of weightlessness for at least a short period. Carpenter's job was to add to this knowledge by performing a number of tasks during the flight, during which he would be in a weightless state up to the time of re-entry through the earth's atmosphere.

Among the tasks scheduled during the flight were the release of a multicolored balloon and plastic confetti to test color and depth perception in space.

Return Problem

Insertion into orbit does not make the mission a success. More serious capsule trouble could develop than the problem Glenn had with his automatic control system.

And ahead lay the critical re-entry through the earth's atmosphere at the completion of flight.

Three reverse rockets at the base of the capsule were to be fired as Aurora 7 approached the west coast of the United States near the end of the third orbit.

This would slow the capsule so it would come out of orbit and make a gradual descent through searing re-entry heat up to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Then Carpenter was to place his salvation in a successful deployment of two parachutes, landing in the planned recovery area and pickup by one of the recovery ships.

Contact in Nigeria

The Kano, Nigeria, tracking station made contact with Carpenter at 8:08 a.m. and reported everything was in fine shape.

Immediately after his capsule separated from the Atlas, Carpenter took over the manual controls to maneuver his spacecraft to get a look at the rocket as it fell away.

"I've got the booster in the center of the window," he reported by radio.

As the capsule swept high over the Indian Ocean halfway through the first orbit, and about 4 minutes after launching, Carpenter passed suddenly from daylight into darkness—the first of three day-night switches he was to encounter today. On each pass he also swept from spring in the United States to autumn over Australia.

Haze at Canaveral

Carpenter reported the automatic control system in his capsule was performing well and that all systems were great.

Ground haze obscured Cape Canaveral before the launch but it did not interfere greatly with the big adventure.

The orbital figures were very close to those achieved by Glenn last Feb. 20. His capsule swung in orbit ranging from 100 to 162 miles at a speed of 17,500 miles an hour. In a conversation with the Canary Island station Carpenter said source of his instrument readings did not agree with what he saw with navigation lines etched on his window. However, experts at the Canary station told him that the ground telemetry showed he was in the proper orbit attitude.

Temperature Too High

Aurora 7 passed over the Muchea, Australia, tracking post at 8:36 a.m. (EST) and Carpenter reported he was "getting behind on his plan for work."

He also reported the temperature in his air-conditioned space suit was slightly above normal and he was attempting to correct it by increasing the flow of cool air into the suit from the environmental control system.

Just as it did on Glenn's flight, the Atlas performed with amazing precision. With pinpoint accuracy it pushed the spacecraft flight, only to be dropped last through "a keyhole in the sky" at March 15 when it was disclosed the desired speed and angle. If it had a minor heart flutter, had missed this spot in space 100 miles high and 500 miles north.

Stacyton advised Carpenter to limit his exercise until the suit east of the Cape, the Bermuda temperature could be corrected, tracking station would have or measured, Australia, Carpenter's earth immediately.

3 Orbits Planned

The control center reported five minutes after blast off that Aurora 7 was in successful orbit and could remain aloft for seven circuits of the globe if necessary.

But the mission was planned for only three orbits, the same as Glenn's. Seven orbits would entail returning the astronaut's capsule to earth somewhere in the Pacific and would involve the deployment of great numbers of recovery vessels.

If a three-orbit mission was completed, flight time would be about four hours and 50 minutes. If all went well, the capsule would parachute into the Atlantic near Grand Turk island, 800 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral about 12:35 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Despite the extreme stresses of rocket acceleration, Carpenter calmly reported on conditions in the capsule. He said forces pressed him against his contour couch—in effect increasing the weight of his lean, trim body eight times its normal 155 pounds.

Complete Reports

Shortly after insertion into orbit, Carpenter reported on cabin pressure, oxygen supply and other instrument readings in his capsule, reported.

He said all were in good condition and that he himself was in excellent shape.

Communicating with him from the control center was a veteran space traveler, astronaut Virgil I. "Gus" Grissom, who last year made a suborbital rocket trip.

After Aurora 7 was successfully in orbit, the astronaut reported the capsule had turned around 180 degrees as intended, so that he was riding upright and backward through space, with the capsule's blunt heat shield leading the way. At this point he was in the buoyant world of weightlessness, the condition that results when a delicate balance is achieved between the outward pull of centrifugal force and the downward pull of the earth's gravity.

Data on Capsule

Mercury control center reported that the capsule was in an orbit ranging from 99 to 164 miles above the earth at a speed of 17,500 miles an hour.

At 8 a.m., Carpenter's Aurora 7 passed over the Canary Islands to hold water and the British are tracking station and he reported inclined to think that a whole that he was exercising the manual combination of circumstances is controls. The steering system and the automatic controls were working properly and everything is that Hong Kong cannot possibly seem normal in the capsule, he absorb any sizable portion of the exodus.

of the Western world with which it has no diplomatic relations.

It also seems to be established that there are no famine conditions in China sufficiently bad to account for the sudden outflow. Although conditions are rotten according to Western standards—with a rice ration of one pound a day and a meat ration of only a quarter of a pound of pork a month—there is not believed to be any widespread starvation that the capsule was in an orbit in the areas of Kwantung province from which most of the refugees come.

Circumstances Blamed

Other possible explanations fall passed over the Canary Islands to hold water and the British are tracking station and he reported inclined to think that a whole that he was exercising the manual combination of circumstances is controls. The steering system and the automatic controls were working properly and everything is that Hong Kong cannot possibly seem normal in the capsule, he absorb any sizable portion of the exodus.

Business, Labor Reach No Accord

Conference Called by President Produces Talk, but Few Results

WASHINGTON (AP)—It would be nice to think a bunch of labor World Wars I and II and business leaders, meeting in an auditorium, could work out management relations in their problems amicably by the use of intelligence and sweet reason. The one way for these ancient rivals to keep the government out of interfering with their business can labor-management relations long ago, and repeatedly, would be to reach compromise. President Kennedy called together agreements beneficial to both, 200 labor and management representatives this week to find answers for keeping the economy sound, that after two days they hit on the head with a government club.

There's no reason to think that. For instance, employers through if they meet again they'll do any most of American history fought better. Nevertheless, Kennedy said the attempts of their workers to be first one and will have others. GOP Confident as Convention Opens

Main Interest on Governorship Race; Between Kuehn, Knowles

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer
MILWAUKEE — Republican organization politicians arriving for the weekend state convention are showing more confidence and optimism about the fall election than any time in the last six years. Up to 4,000 of the Republican organization volunteers will work with the party professionals here during the next two days in building an endorsed ticket of candidates for the Republican primary election in September.

The central interest of the convention will be the endorsement of a candidate for the governorship, who will be the leader of the Republican assault upon the Demo-

The latest additions will raise Sunnyside's population to 48, the highest it has been for several years and may prompt the reopening of the children's wing.

Sunnyside has a capacity of about 60 beds in the used portions and an additional 24 beds in the children's wing.

Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties, which jointly operate the facility, have been considering converting the children's wing for use as a general hospital for geriatrics and other county care patients.

Mrs. Virginia Nolan, chairman of Winnebago County Board's institutions committee, said she did not know if the latest cases would affect conversion plans.

She said the board of trustees is getting estimates from architects on the work and will report back to the institutions committees of the two counties.

ing tariffs in return for cuts from the Common Market and other countries.

He mentioned a recent policy statement by the American Paper and Pulp Association favoring tariff cuts. "The paper industry is thus the first major industry to have taken a stand in favor of tariff reductions," he said.

The Nekoosa-Edwards executive emphasized that any tariff reductions should be "truly reciprocal" — with no discrimination either way.

Identical Tariffs
This means, he said, that new reciprocal trade legislation should give the President power to negotiate with the Common Market on a basis which assures to our industry a mutual reduction of tariffs to arrive at identical tariffs for the Common Market group and for our industry, item for item.

"We favor matching, identical tariffs," he said. If the tariff wall the United States revises its "unrealistic depreciation allowance here, it should be 4 per cent for tax purposes" and eventually here. If it's 10 per cent there it should be 10 per cent here. If it's 0 per cent there (free trade), it should be 0 here.

Ban 'Phony Controls'
He said the "most favored nation" concept should be modified so that agreements with each country or bloc stand on their own feet. There should be one arrangement with the Common Market, a different one with Canada, a still different one with Sweden. Each agreement would have its own matching tariff.

"In addition, the so-called

Robert Marotz, state assembly chief clerk and former speaker of the legislature when he was a Shawano County assemblyman, is commonly regarded as leading the field of four aspirants for convention backing for attorney general.

The convention action has no legal effect. The Wisconsin September primary is "open", in the sense that anybody can run, and a voter can vote on either party ticket. The Republican candidate for governor who emerges from the convention will have a fight for the nomination in the primary with Wilbur Renk of Sun Prairie, who may have other "independent" running mates for lesser state offices.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII said Wednesday the Roman Catholic Church, in calling this critical last period of his convention fight, faithful to its "duty of offering the entire world everything possible toward solving the great difficulties of life."

"As America's leading paper state, we have the highest stake in favor of free trade in pulp, paper and paperboard through-out the Western world as promptly as the machinery can be adjusted and vigor."

"We must take a positive stand

"We hope ultimately that free trade for pulp and paper products for both groups will follow—and eventually for all free nations."

Thrive on Competition
Undoubtedly, he said, some domestic pulp, paper and paperboard manufacturers would be "distressed" by tariff reductions. But he pointed out that the Wisconsin paper industry has a long history of "painful readjustments" caused by outside competition. "We seem to have thrived on it," he declared.

This country could compete successfully with foreign paper manufacturers, despite a higher wage rate, Casey claimed, because the U.S. generally has a higher rate of productivity.

But, he said, the U.S. ultimately would be at a serious disadvantage in a free-trade world unless the United States revises its "unrealistic depreciation allowance it faces up to a revision of basic tax structure "to restore more individual and corporate incentive."

Casey pointed out that the United States currently is importing about twice as much pulp, paper and paperboard as it exports, but that the value of exports has doubled in the past seven years and promises to increase.

Timberlands a Plus
"A highly critical item in our favor is our reserve of timberlands," he said. "For example, in Wisconsin, for years now we have been growing more timber than we have used."

"A larger export trade would seem to indicate a tremendous boon to some of our northern counties, where it has been difficult to find markets for some species of trees."

"Wisconsin is the heart of papermaking in this country," he stated. "We employ more than 40,000 paper workers directly—and thousands of others have jobs in supporting and allied industries such as pulpwood production

Chamber Unit To Have Tour

Teachers Joining
Appleton Schools
Will See City Sites

The industrial division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce will conduct a tour of the city and reception for new teachers, joining the Appleton school system in the fall of 1962.

Allan C. Mulder, Harley B. Splitt and A. Sherman Frinak are in charge of the tour.

The tour was approved after a suggestion by Miss Elizabeth Plowright, president of the Appleton Education Association.

The division also confirmed dates for a supervisory training course Sept. 5 and Oct. 2 and 9. The title of the course will be "Developing Supervisory Skills."

Leadership First

The course will be offered as an advance course for those who completed courses in section A of the Management Institute of the University of Wisconsin.

For the first time in Appleton, a course in "Modern Leadership Techniques" will be offered April 23, 30 and May 7, 1963.

The division will tour the Appleton office of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. June 20.

Young Business Man: YOUR CARRIER

When you consider the activities in which the majority of the Post-Crescent's 500 newscarriers are engaged, it is difficult to understand how certain teenagers can't find enough things to do to keep them busy.

Take Post-Crescent newscarrier, Mike Van Lieshout, for instance. Mike has an extensive route in Appleton which includes the 100 to 200 blocks on S. Mason St., 1300 to 1500 blocks on W. Lawrence St., 100 block on S. Douglas St., and the 200 blocks of Victoria and S. Outagamie streets. His application to his business has secured nine new customers since the first of the year.

Mike is an eighth grade student at St. Mary school. He also finds time to play football, baseball and basketball. He takes time to enjoy music, to add to his stamp collection, and to work on model cars and trains. This makes a pretty full day every day of the week, and Mike must wonder how so many teenagers can say so much about having so much time on their hands to do nothing.

Like any good business man, Mike divides his profits between an allowance for clothes and a savings account.

3 Fox Cities Men Elected as CLU Officers

Two Appleton men and one Neenah man were elected officers of the Northeastern Wisconsin Chapter of Certified Life Underwriters at a spring meeting in Appleton.

Vernon R. Thorson, Appleton, was elected president; James D. Banks, Neenah, secretary-treasurer, and Stuart H. Koch, Appleton, director.

J. Bon Davis, De Pere, was named vice president.

Hold-over directors are George H. Cameron, Appleton, and Carl E. Schroeder, Oshkosh. Educational chairman is Melvin R. Wisniewski, Green Bay.

May Discuss Finance Office On June 20

Ald. George Buckley's resolution that Appleton establish a finance office and hire a director of finance will be discussed at a council committee - of - the whole meeting June 20, if a recommendation by the welfare and ordinance committee is approved.

The committee discussed the resolution Tuesday and decided that action should not be delayed so that, if a finance director is hired, he can take over Jan. 1, 1963, as proposed by Buckley.

Buckley pointed out in his resolution that the finances of the City of Appleton are getting too big to be handled as only part of costs, for materials and supplies, another office operation. With the city budget approaching $10 million, it can be transferred to the new financial problems, a full-time

Man Escapes Injury When Car Overturns

CHILTON — John N. Langenfeld, 23, New Holstein, escaped injury at 10:45 p.m. Sunday when his small foreign sports car rolled after leaving County Trunk H about 1½ miles west of New Holstein.

Langenfeld told police he lost control when he got onto the gravel shoulder. The car skidded more than 100 feet across the road and overturned in the ditch.

Joseph H. Dorn, 44, route 2, New Holstein, suffered facial lacerations at 12:30 a.m. Monday when his car left County Trunk H about a half mile north of St. Anna and slammed against an embankment.

Dorn was treated by a Kiel doctor. His car was extensively damaged.

What could the English possibly mean by
"Gordon's
and splash?"

"Splash" is the English way of saying "soda water." Mixing it with Gordon's Gin is a popular pastime on the other side of the Atlantic. Most Americans prefer "tonic and ice" as a mixer. But on the choice of gin—complete accord. Gordon's. Its distinctive dryness and flavour seem to tip the balance. You'll find these qualities wherever you call for Gordon's by name; for every bottle is still based on Alexander Gordon's original 1769 formula. Could this be why Gordon's is the biggest-selling gin in England, America, the world?

Backyard Chefs Can Go Into Action With These Delicious Holiday Barbecue Meals

Borrowed From the Traditions of old Virginia that go back to colonial days, this pork shoulder roast is spitted and cooked over glowing coals. As the pork cooks slowly, it is basted with a Virginia Smokehouse Sauce that's made more authentic with a touch of liquid smoke Formerly Considered a Mere Braising cut of meat, chuck steak has graduated to its modern status as a cook-out favorite. It becomes tender, juicy and flavorful when sprinkled with seasoned tenderizer before cooking. To insure penetration and to retain meat juices, pierce deeply with a kitchen fork at half-inch intervals on the surface of the steak.

Sandwiches Handy Tips On Picnic

Keeping on hand the makings for quick-to-fix sandwiches will give you top rating with the hike enthusiasts in your family. A tasty mixture is grated cheese finely chopped onion cooked bacon prepared mustard (if desired) combined with tomato catsup. Spread the mixture on the bottom half of split hamburger buns or between slices of enriched bread. Wrap sandwiches in metal foil. At the picnic, lay wrapped buns and fillings that travel well. These sauce or crushed pineapple, jam, or canned deviled meats cheese to melt. Keep buns from any flame to prevent burning. Frankfurters travel along with the best of company when stuffed with mushrooms and cheese. Simply make three slantwise slits in each frankfurter. Do not slice entirely through the meat. Insert a slice of canned mushroom, a small slice of onion and a 1-inch square of cheese in each slit. Roast over hot coals, serve on toasted or plain buns. Letting picnickers make their own sandwiches saves work and gives everybody a part in the head pledge. Just take along whole-ome enriched outttered bread slices nut butter mixed with apple sauce or crushed pineapple, jam, or canned deviled meats

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Food Editor

With Memorial Day just ahead . . . officially opening the picnic and outdoor season in Wisconsin . . . it's time to become serious about backyard barbecues. This great American pastime still is as popular as ever. Nearly every family has its master outdoor chef . . . frequently it's the men in the family who take over the barbecue chores.

Probably steak is the first choice for barbecued meats . . . but more and more families are trying other favorites . . . crispy brown spareribs sizzling on the grill . . . hamburger variations that always seem to please the young fry best . . . and with the more complicated barbecue outfits, roasts, chickens and other fowl are being cooked to a delicate brown on rotating spits as the cook in charge carefully bastes the meat at intervals with special sauces.

But whatever the choice for the outdoor meal, the move will be toward the outdoors for dining and nothing can beat the aroma of fine foods blending with the scent of summer . . . especially when family and friends are gathered together in good companionship.

Spitted Pork Roast
4 to 5-pound pork shoulder roast, boned and rolled
Instant Meat Tenderizer, seasoned

Virginia Smokehouse Sauce
Prepare all surfaces of the meat, one side at a time, as follows: Moisten surface of meat thoroughly with water. Pat water on from faucet with fingers, then use pastry brush or draw wet fork across surface.

Sprinkle Instant Meat Tenderizer evenly, like salt, over entire surface of meat, using about one-half teaspoon per pound of meat. No salt is needed, if seasoned tenderizer is used. To insure penetration and to retain meat juices, pierce meat deeply with a kitchen fork at approximately one-half-inch intervals. The meat is ready for immediate cooking. When barbecuing, place small pan beneath roast and arrange coals around it. Coals are ready when they are gray, shot with a ruddy glow. (This means starting the coals early to have firepot ready by cooking time.)

Secure roast on spit, making sure it is centered to turn evenly. Cook 30 to 35 minutes per pound, in this case for a total of two and a half to three hours.

One hour before end of cooking time, brush meat generously with Virginia Smokehouse Sauce. Baste frequently with sauce for rest of cooking time. Add a few fresh coals when necessary to maintain constant temperature.

Let finished roast rest about 15 minutes before carving for more attractive and uniform slices. Delicious au jus gravy can be made enough beer to work into smooth paste. Add marmalade molasses thoroughly, add remaining beer.

If an over rousserie is used summer until sauce slightly thick-

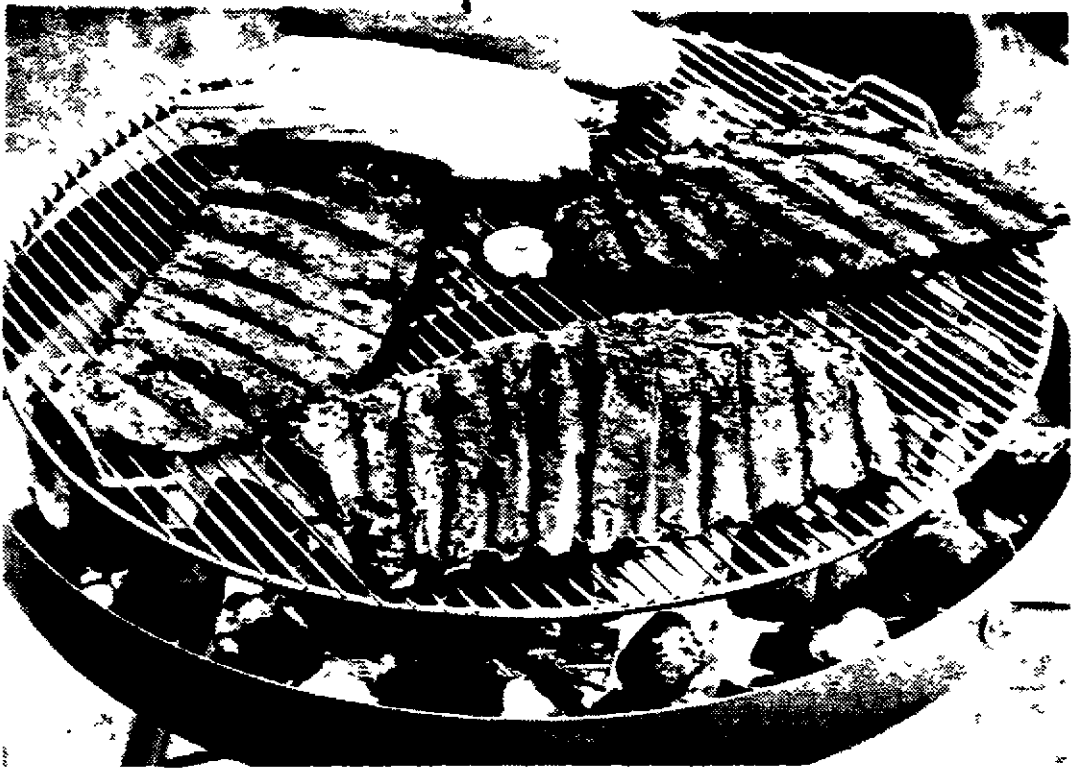

Exotic Indonesian Family Steak is a real show-stopper for an outdoor party. Sliced and topped with Gado Gado Sauce, this is a special dish that delightfully combines the best of Oriental and Western cookery. The original Sauce recipe adapted to American tastes and available ingredients . . . comes from the islands of Java and Sumatra.

Preheat oven to 325 degrees and ened. Remove from heat and stir down on grill. They should be place pan below roast to catch the in liquid smoke.

Virginia Smokehouse Sauce
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup beer
3 tablespoons lime or orange marmalade
2 tablespoons molasses
1 clove garlic, crushed
1/4 teaspoon seasoned tenderizer
1 1/2 teaspoon liquid smoke
Combine dry mustard and cornstarch in saucepan adding just drippings. Add marmalade molasses thoroughly, add remaining beer.

Barbecued Spareribs
4 pounds spareribs
Instant Meat Tenderizer, seasoned
1/2 lemon, thinly sliced
Western Barbecue Sauce
Allow about one pound spareribs per person. Prepare all surfaces of meat as in the Spitted Pork Roast, first moistening with water with fingertips then drawing pastry brush across surface, sprinkling with tenderizer about two teaspoonsfuls, piercing meat deeply at half inch intervals for the penetration. When coals are down to ruddy glow, place ribs meaty side about six inches above coals. Barbecue ribs for 30 minutes, turn and brush with Western Barbecue Sauce. Continue to cook until well done, a total of one and a half hours, frequently turning and brushing with sauce. During last 10 minutes of cooking, place lemon slices on ribs. To serve, cut into one-rib pieces with kitchen scissors. Western Barbecue Sauce

1 cup catsup
1 cup water
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 small onion minced
1 small clove garlic, minced

Crispy Brown Spareribs are Smacking good when spiced with Western Barbecue Sauce. No one can resist the zesty aroma and robust flavor of this meat when it's cooked for an hour to an hour and a half over grayed coals shot with a ruddy glow. Barbecued spareribs can become a summer-long favorite.

2 Tablespoons brown sugar
2 Tablespoons molasses
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 Tablespoon liquid smoke
Combine all ingredients in medium saucepan. Simmer over low heat 20 minutes.

Barbecued Chuck Steak
2 chuck steaks, cut 1 to 1 1/2 inch thick
Instant Meat Tenderizer, seasoned

Slash fat edges of steak to prevent curling. Prepare surface of both sides of steaks as in the other meats, moistening and sprinkling with tenderizer, using one half teaspoon per pound. Pierce meat with fork to allow tenderizer to penetrate. Set grill one inch above grayed but glowing coals. Cook steaks approximately 10 minutes for rare meat and longer for other desired doneness. Turn steaks frequently during cooking process.

Barbecued Indonesian Family Steak
3-pound bonless top round, 2 inches thick
Instant Meat Tenderizer, seasoned
Gado Gado Sauce
Slash fat edges and prepare all surfaces of meat as in above other meats.

Place family steak on grill set two inches above coals, gray, shot with ruddy glow. Barbecue a total of 25 minutes for rare steak, 30 minutes for medium, 35 to 40 minutes for well done. Turn steak frequently during cooking.

When done, place steak on meat board to carve. Using a sharp knife, cut steak in thin diagonal slices across the grain, holding knife at 30-degree angle rather than perpendicular. Three or more steaks make a generous Turn to Page 5 Col. 4

Barnard President Urges Women to Plan Careers

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman's place is in the home, goes the old saying. (C) Her "place" has been out of the home for 40 years, during which time she has had a fulltime career in education. And she ought to know, for the following reasons: (A) She is a woman. (B) She has raised five children. Now preparing to retire next month from the presidency of Barnard College, she yesterday told a gathering in her honor: "A woman doesn't have to spend 24 hours a day in the home. She cannot have an ideal life as a mother and wife if bounded completely in the home."

Despite the growing number of women going to college, she said, many withdraw from any possibility of using their education soon after they get it.

"The drive toward the kitchen" has made women act in "outrageous ways," Mrs. McIntosh, 63, told more than 700 Barnard alumnae and friends and associates. She urged colleges to better prepare their women students to fulfill themselves as people—not only as women.

Get Women Back to Work "We must get talented and superior women back to work," she said. "The percentage of women in higher ranks of business and professional life is going steadily down—a very strange thing—an utter phenomenon."

A woman's first responsibility is to her family, Mrs. McIntosh said, but young mothers should work out some arrangement to have their children cared for while they work parttime, and there is no reason for a woman not to return to a career after her children are raised.

Recognize Possibilities She added: "We must stop our Cassandra chorus and recognize the enormous possibilities of the present world."

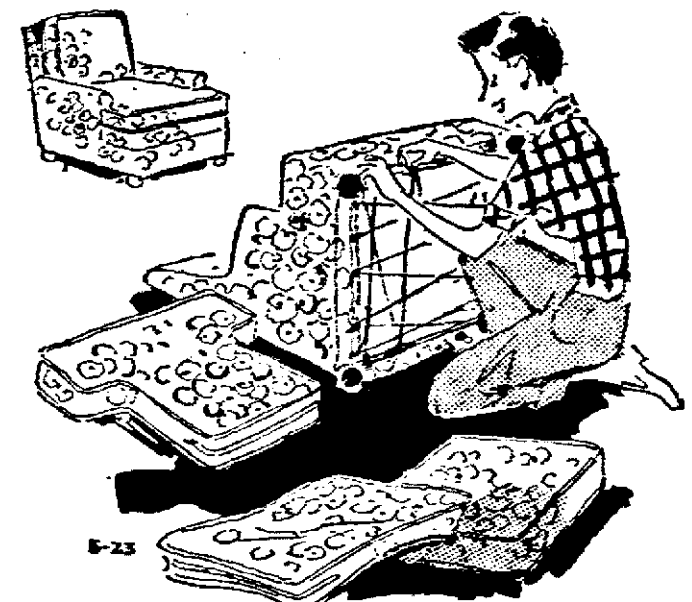

"Educated women today have a unique and glorious opportunity because the world desperately needs their trained services, because superior men want to marry them and because we have it within our power to use all the forces of knowledge and idealism so that they can fulfill their responsibilities to themselves and the future."

New Sophomores To Attend Dance

A 'New Sophomore' dance is scheduled from 7 to 11:30 p.m. Friday at the YMCA. The Terrors Den is open to high school students only, and the party will be a welcome to those who are completing ninth grade.

New Slipcover Idea

It's a double problem solver—and red than a typical pastel. The increasingly popular idea of and also would be best with added using the same fabric for the sparks of sharp color.

original covering of upholstered furniture, and for slipcovers to be kept on over it. The furniture is so easy to freshen by sending the slipcovers to the cleaner, and their removal never leaves the room temporarily out of order.

Also because the furniture looks the same whether the slipcovers are on or off, only one color scheme need be planned instead of the usual two needed when basic covers and slipcovers are different.

Mrs. C. D.'s letter, like many others, asks for suggestions for wall and floor colors to go with furniture before and after it's slipcovered, and she also asks how slipcovers can be styled without flounces to the floor. If you use the single fabric idea, Mrs. D., only one harmonizing choice is required and scheming will be simple with the sage green you prefer. The slipcovers should omit flounces if they aren't on the covers underneath, and can be made to fit tightly at the bottom by adding turn-under margins with eyelets and laces.

Mrs. R. W. H.: "My husband and I can't agree on color for our kitchen walls—should they be white or pastel? They are dark gray now and the ceiling is white. The cabinets are dark-stained birch, the counter tops are dark red and the table top is red. If you think a color is better than white, what color? Should the ceiling match or be white?"

The room would be especially attractive with white for the walls and sharp colors for decorations and accessories. Hang something on a wall, perhaps a travel poster or one of the smartly printed linen towels intended for hanging, or use bright cut-outs handy from wallpaper or a bold wallpaper border. Hair Setting Easy When Natural Growth Followed

Do you enjoy setting your hair, effortless if you stop fighting your hair or is it a time-consuming, irritating task that you dread? Hair's natural growth tendencies and work with them. And the hair setting can be easy and place to start is at your hair-dresser's, when you first have your hair styled.

Your hairdresser knows that the closer she works with the natural growth tendencies of your hair, the longer the style will last and the easier it will be for you to set it yourself between appointments.

Unfortunately, many women fail to avail themselves of their hair-styling. They arbitrarily select a style from a chart, or bring with them, you know that it's imitate movie star and demand that their hair be set just so, regardless of whether their hair is suited to that particular style.

If the style does not suit their hair, or is one of the over-elaborate fad styles, the hairdresser must distort the hair out of shape and frequently coat it with heavy lacquer to keep it in shape. Often, these elaborate hairdos hold for only a few hours. If you've tried them, you know that it's impossible for you to set them yourself and obtain satisfactory results.

However, if you ask your hairdresser's advice on styles that follow the natural growth tendency of your hair, you'll find that the hair setting problem has been simplified.

A good hairdresser will teach you how to set your hair style and how to comb and brush the setting out. She'll show you the "wave points" so you can catch these points with bobby pins or clips and thus maintain your style. Some hairdressers have charts to show how the hair should be arranged for setting, how many curlers should be used and where the clips and curlers should go.

Once your hairdresser has set a style based on the natural tendencies of your hair, you'll find it easy to shape by hand after a shampoo or before setting it for the night.

Your Problems Window Peeper's Wife Warns Women to Keep Shades Pulled

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a window peeper. Oh, he doesn't stand outside strange houses and look—he's much too sophisticated for that. He has the finest binoculars on the market and can operate very nicely from a pitch-black patio or from our bedroom window.

For months I considered this my own secret shame (thinking, of course, there was something terribly wrong with him) when recently at a dinner party the subject came up. I learned to my horror that almost every man present was engaging in the same sport. The peepers gleefully compared notes on the best type of binoculars and the most effective vantage points. Then the conversation fanned out to include the fascinating things that had been seen.

This letter is not a request for advice. Nothing I could say or do would get him to stop anyway. I'm writing in the hope that you will print this letter, along with my pleas to all female readers, to keep your shades down, girls. And I mean all the way down. —Ima Gitt

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

ANNIVERSARY GIFT

When a 50th wedding anniversary is celebrated with an Open House, when and by whom is a gift expected? Are they musts, unexcusable, optional, nice gestures? After the greetings and refreshments are the guests expected to remain for a while or do they leave immediately if the house is crowded? Or does one stay and expect some of the others to leave first?

Louise Davis Answers:

Gifts should never be expected. We all know that gift-giving happens on many occasions such as birthdays, graduations, weddings, anniversaries. But to expect presents diminishes much of the joy of these anniversary milestones. No one wants to think, "I suppose I'll have to get Mr. and Mrs. X a gift because I'm invited to an Open House for them." There is pleasure in sincerely wanting to give because of love and friendship. Therefore it is an added pleasure to receive assuming that the gesture comes from the heart and not by obligation. So giving is optional. At these Open House parties, guests don't want to wear out their welcome. There is no protocol as to who leaves first. Some might arrive at 5 o'clock and remain a half hour, or some might come at 4:30 and stay until the end.

SEAMLESS STOCKINGS

Is there a time or occasion when one should or should not wear seamless stockings?

Louise Davis Answers:

No.

utility company turning off the juice. What can I do?—Church Mice

Dear Mice: Ask an unbiased third party to sit down with you both and explain the financial facts of life.

In some families it's the wife who is better at managing the money. When such is the case the husband should be happy to let her do it.

What some men can't get through their thick skulls is this: There's nothing unmanly about handing over a paycheck to a wife who can stretch it further than he can throw it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me how to fall out of love with my husband. We have been married 15 years.

Harvey is cold and unaffectionate. He actually pushes me away when I try to kiss him. I can't remember the last time we had a conversation. He only speaks to me when he has something to criticize.

He spends money lavishly on himself but I have to account for every penny. Harvey is rude to me in public and embarrasses me with his critical remarks in front of my family and friends. Yet I adore him.

If I could just stop loving him so much life would be tolerable.

Can you help me?—Slave to love

Dear Slave: Some women thrive on abuse and get satisfaction from being mistreated. If a man showered such a woman with kindness and consideration she would not care for him.

Of course this is a sick approach to love which goes way back to childhood. Years of therapy would be required to straighten out such a personality problem.

It certainly is too big a job to

PET DOCTOR

By A. W. Moller, D.V.M.

Q. How old should a male horse be before he is gelded? M. Jackson, Duluth, Minn.

A. Most stallions are unreliable and unmanageable either as riding or work horses. So, male horses are usually gelded. The longer it is delayed, the more masculine will be their characteristics. Some of the bigger work horses have had their operations at six weeks of age. Most riding horses are gelded between one and two years of age. Many show horses are not operated on until they are three years old so that they can develop strong necks and a spirited gait. In many parts of the country horses cannot be operated on during cold weather or in the heat of summer (particularly during fly season). Spring and fall are the only times when it is practical to take care of this important surgery.

The Ailing House Use Cement Base Paint On Blocks

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q. Our attached garage has concrete block walls. What kind of paint can be used on these walls? We want the color the same as the rest of the house.

A. The blocks can be coated with two applications of a damp-proof cement base paint, coming in powder form to be mixed with water. Or you can use a good quality vinyl plastic latex paint which can be applied to any kind of surface, wood, metal, masonry, etc.

Q. Is it possible to cut marble at home? We have a long low table we would like to convert into a pair of small tables, if we could cut the marble top.

A: This is not a home job for an amateur. A diamond wheel and water is required for cutting marble; if not cut by someone experienced in working with this material, the marble may be cracked or split. I recommend your consulting a marble dealer or contractor about this; consult the classified telephone directory.

Paint Blisters

Q: Shortly after we paint the wood floor of our front porch, the paint starts to blister, then flakes off. The floor is in good condition, and we use a top quality deck paint. How can we correct this?

A: Moisture accumulating under the paint film is the usual cause of blistering. This occurs if the paint is applied to a wet wood surface, or if there is insufficient air circulation and ventilation on the underside of the porch. In addition to providing adequate ventilation, cover the ground with overlapping strips of polyethylene plastic, overlapping about six inches and sealing with roofing cement to prevent the rise of ground moisture. Painting the underside of the porch floor with aluminum paint will also act as a vapor barrier against ground moisture.

Florentine Diamond Has Exciting, Mysterious Past

A big, sunny diamond and six—it has gone under a number of names—these were the “aliases” in the past. During its which created an interplay of nine most precious gems of Maria Theresa’s family when she married her childhood “crush,” young Francis Stephen of Lorraine. Of the many beautiful diamonds in the Habsburg Jewels, it was probably the prize and weighed 137.27 carats. Remarkable for its fire, the Florentine diamond was of an unusual citron-yellow color, looking like a cluster of sunbeams.

Happy Period in History
Austria’s acquisition of the diamond marked the beginning of a happy period in Maria Theresa’s life. She had a husband she adored, beauty, intelligence, wealth, power and a palace full of lovely children. Of all of this only the great diamond—the bright emblem of these years—remains. But its present whereabouts is a provocative mystery.

Of the famous diamonds of the world, the fabulous Florentine has had one of the most mysterious, involved and romantic histories. Its “public life” ended in the first of its “public life” ended in the first of the 17th Century. The famous Medici family of Florence owned it in the 1600’s. There has been speculation that prior to ownership by the Medici, the diamond was owned in turn by Charles the Bold, the Duke of Milan, Pope Julius II and the noted Fugger family. But there is no real evidence to support these theories.

Medici First Owner
The first positive record of the diamond is its ownership by the Medici. To these financial wizards and connoisseurs of art, the great diamond was both an art treasure and an investment, a bright umbrella for a rainy day. And with typically shrewd caution, the Medici kept the existence of the great diamond a secret. Apparently, they showed it to only one “outsider,” the prominent French gem dealer, Tavernier. He said they gave him no indication as to when or from whom it had come.

After the death of the last of the Medici, when Tuscany was annexed to Austria at the time of Maria Theresa’s marriage, the Florentine diamond went to the Habsburgs.

While today the brilliant diamond may be traveling incognito, most positive for the style of its Florentine diamond, a beautiful cutting appeared to be Indian. It Indian diamond of citron-yellow color turned up in this country. This is called the Shah of Persia “not to be confused with the great “bar” diamond, the Shah’s and it has been re-cut some time in its history. The weight is 99.52 carats—about what the Florentine would weigh were it re-cut. The Shah of Persia diamond comes to the cancer fund. Arnold Schroeder, Rudy Spreeman, Mrs. Rueben Palmbach and Mrs. Arnold Schroeder won the prizes Mrs. Erwin Tellock won the special prize.

Maybe but maybe not. And if not, where is the sunny diamond that brought happiness to Maria Theresa—the fabulous Florentine?

Jolly Worker's Have Meeting

GREENVILLE — The Jolly Worker’s Homemaker Club had a cancer benefit party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Tiedt Dr. Frank Wright and Mrs. Kate Kirchberg showed slides. A free will offering was given to the cancer fund. Arnold Schroeder, Rudy Spreeman, Mrs. Rueben Palmbach and Mrs. Arnold Schroeder won the prizes Mrs. Erwin Tellock won the special prize.

The club will have its picnic June 12 at the home of Mrs. Charles and Henry Schaefer.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Game With Thread Spools

Great Fun for Everyone

BY CAPPY DICK

Spools, several pieces of paper and some adhesive tape are all you need to build a game to play on an uncarpeted floor. It's an obstacle race.

The racers are empty thread spools, one for each player (Figure 1). A half dozen strips of paper, each about four inches wide and 10 inches long, are tattered to the floor with tape. These obstacles are laid out in a straight line, each six inches from its neighbor (Figure 3). The object of the game is to see which player can roll his racer over the greatest number of obstacles.

Each obstacle is worth a certain number of points—those farther down the line being worth more than those close to the starting place. To score, a player's spool must roll completely over at least one obstacle. If it rolls over more than one, the player is credited with the points for each. If the spool is so badly aimed it rolls beside an obstacle, it scores nothing.

Before fastening the papers to the floor, print the point value on each. Let the first in line be

Billy Graham to Speak in Chicago

Billy Graham will start a Chicago crusade at McCormick Place Wednesday May 30.

More than 12,000 counselors have enrolled in special training classes preceding the crusade, and 6,000 separate daily prayer meetings have been organized. Eight associate evangelists will be preaching at subsidiary meetings throughout the city.

McCormick Place, where the main crusade meetings will be held, is the largest indoor arena in the world, seating 35,000.

Appleton Chamber President Appoints Finance Committee

The Appleton Chamber of Commerce's new president, John P. Reeve, has appointed the first new committee, the budget and finance committee.

D. R. Morrissey will head the committee. Otto A. Hansen, Richard C. Van Sistine and Gus A. Zuehlke are other committee members.

The committee has developed a budget calling for expenditures of $4,245 during the current fiscal year. This is smaller than the fiscal 1961 budget of $45,910.

ATE at the End

Each answer to each clue in this list is a word ending with ATE, as in the words MOTIVATE and ANTEDEATE. How many of these words can you figure out?

- Solten.
- Sailor's friend.
- To respect.
- To impel; incite.
- To imbore.
- Sumptuously decorated.
- Act jointly.
- Diminish in force.
- To chatter senselessly.
- Jagged like a saw.
- To glut; to pall.

ANSWERS

- Modulate.
- Shipmate.
- Venerate.
- Marinate.
- Motivate.
- Innate.
- Ornate.
- Moderate.
- Prate.
- Serrate.
- Sate.

The starting line from which each player must roll his spool should be three feet in front of the first obstacle. The easiest way to roll the spool, at the same time aiming it carefully, is to place your palm on it and shove it forward quickly.

Let each player have five turns, crediting him with the value of the obstacles over which his spool rolls. The player who has scored the most points after five turns is the winner of the game.

Comedy Spot' to Bear Watching, Says Jingo

CBS-TV to Run Pilot Film Series During Coming Replacement Season

BY JINGO
The time of the replacement has come and the sound of the replacement is in the air, but the tunes won't all be familiar—not yet. CBS-TV has a plan to kill two birds with one stone, as it were. It has scheduled a show to be called "Comedy Spot" and it should be a pretty good spot to watch. The idea is to use the summer spot to "spin-off" proposed pilot films of comedy shows that never got beyond the pilot stage and didn't get a chance to have a spin-off on other CBS shows last season. One of the spots in the summer series will be the "Medicine Man" series pilot shot by Ernie Kovacs only hours before he died in that auto accident.

If the response to some of these spin-offs is favorable, TV viewers will have the strange experience of watching what amounts to repeats of summer replacements later in the season.

There is plenty of room for new shows on TV. Of the 34 shows that made their debuts last season only 11 will be back next season.

Martha Raye is going to change her way of life by portraying her old self in a TV series. The thing that will pin down the roaming Martha is a series about an actress who spends her life touring, just like

CBS Reports On Tariff Pros-Cons

BY TV SCOUT
9-10 (Channel 2) — CBS Reports takes a subject which sounds tedious and technical—tariffs and foreign trade—and makes it into a fascinating, easy to understand hour. Producer Gene DePaul is particularly proud of the fact that he obtained exclusive interviews with President Kennedy and former President Eisenhower. Both interviews, running about eight or nine minutes each, have David Schenbrun doing the questioning. The program looks at the effect of the possible lowering of tariffs on some small industries, and you'll sit in on an eloquent meeting in Bellare, Ohio, where glass blowers protest to Rep. John Dent, D-Pa.

6-30-7-30 (Channel 4-5) — Outlaws' repeat tells another weary story of a Wild West bank robbery. The only thing slightly different here are the three robbers, who are all amateurs.

7-8 (Channel 2) — It's bizarre plague week in Frontier Court, but what could have been an interesting story of the primitive West battling the plague is allowed to degenerate into a routine Western of bad guys and good guys. Casey Thompson's "Chill Wills" is returning to the circus to a chimpanzee just off the tour. It is suspected that the chimp carries the black death disease and the authorities track him and Casey to a saloon.

7-30-8-30 (Channel 4-5) — Dr. Kildare has a morbidly fascinating look into the past and ward this week. Kildare (Richard Chamberlain) as his psychiatrist Bert Frier in an experiment to a new drug designed to restore the most advanced mental cases to some semblance of reality. Chief patient here is Sidney Blackmer, a one-time doctor who has not said a word in five years.

8-8-30 (Channel 11) — Chis, Stan, and Irv are the featured son on My Three Sons this week, but the funniest part of this show is a subplot which poses good natured fun at the dropping part school of modern art.

8-30-9 (Channel 11) — On "The Law and Mr. Jones," one of the most popular episodes featured Russ Brown as James Whitmore's father. So they brought Brown back for two more shows this year, and to

Almost Million Jobs Could Be Created by Overtime Abolition

BY NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Close to a million jobs could be created if done in nonmanufacturing industries, the substantial overtime being tried in manufacturing industries could be somehow eliminated and the work turned over to the unemployed.

One of the major inequities of the nation's economic situation is that, with millions unemployed, workers who have jobs are enjoying almost unprecedented earnings because of a great deal of overtime at bonus rates.

The government reports that factory workers, for example, averaged 2.6 hours of overtime a week during March.

If these overtime hours were denied to workers already on factory payrolls and idled employees rehired to do the work, a sizable dent would be made in the nation's 4.4 million unemployed to ital. The total would be reduced unions may espouse the greater overtime penalty as an alternate method of work time sharing. This has been discussed in the AFL-CIO Executive Council, organized labor's high command, which opens its two-day spring meeting here today.

Labor unions in some of the leading industries, notably steel and autos, are particularly concerned. The Auto Workers Union has asked the carmakers several times to eliminate what the union termed "excessive and unnecessary overtime" in order to make room for laid-off workers.

Problem for Employers
Why isn't this done? Why do employers prefer to pay workers 1½ times their regular rate of pay for substantial amounts of overtime, rather than recall experienced workers, still on layoff from the recession, to do the work at the cheaper straight time rate of pay?

The answer, according to the experts, is that while a certain amount of overtime work is always necessary because of rush jobs and need for particularly skilled workmen, the situation is aggravated now by several factors.

Employers hesitate to take on responsibilities involved in hiring new workers when they are uncertain about long-term business conditions.

Fringe Benefits Factor
Another reason is the cost of fringe benefits. It has become cheaper in some cases to pay the overtime premium for extra hours than to take back former workers and the obligations for fringe benefit costs and payroll taxes. With one worker these costs are paid only once, with two workers twice.

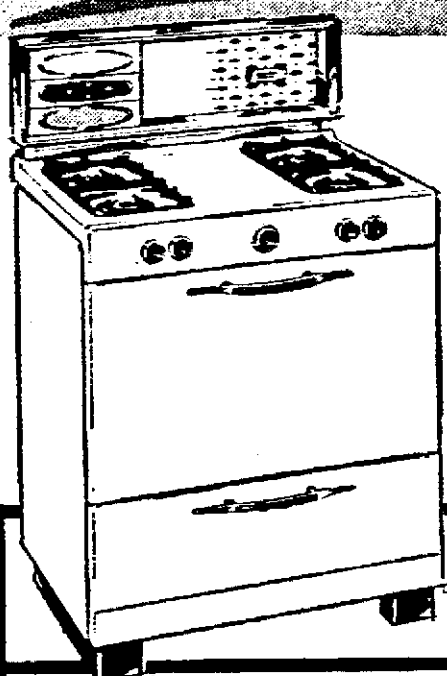

The cost differential favoring is not always true, but it is in enough cases now when employers may see enough work ahead for several months for extra employees but not enough work beyond that.

Labor union leaders are reported to have broached the problem to President Kennedy at a recent White House conference. Nothing was decided, but the union men are considering a plea to Congress to boost the overtime penalty to double time, or twice the regular pay rate.

Urged Shorter Week
The purpose would be to discourage overtime and hiring of extra workers.

Up to now the unions have favored reducing the 40-hour work week. Students from Kimberly week limit provided in the fair represented will be Christine labor standards (wage-hour law) Ruys, Ann Vanden Boom, Joan as a step to share the available Vanden Heuvel, Patty Nirschl and work With Kennedy on record as Barbara Welch, opposed to a shorter work week.

Social Reforms Try to Cure Bolivia's Physical, Racial Ills

Ruling Party's Decrees Alter Fundamental Structure of Country

LA PAZ, Bolivia — Bolivia is a country of contrast and division. The division is both physical and racial. The physical division arises from the fact that the country consists of two totally different parts. The first part is a high "plateau" which contains the capital and many mining towns. The second part lies to the East and is a very fertile but underdeveloped lowland with tropical characteristics. The other division is racial. In Bolivia there is a minority of European descent and a majority of indigenous Indians. These divisions run through every aspect of Bolivian life.

The Movimiento Nacionalista

Sixth of a Series

Revolutionary came into power in 1952 and is now the ruling party. It is committed to a profound social reform. Three decrees are altering fundamentally the social structure of the country. 1. The expropriation and nationalization of the tin mines. 2. Universal suffrage without literacy or income qualifications. 3. A policy of land reform and redistribution of the large estates. By 1957 over 14,000 farmers had received titles to their land. The total effect seems to be that power is being taken from the white minority and vested in the Indian majority.

Turbulent History

Bolivia has had a turbulent history. The Incas conquered the Aymaras by 1515. The Spaniards in turn conquered Bolivia in 1538. Revolutionary movements against the Spanish rule began earlier here than anywhere else. In 1809, the University of St. Francis Xavier at Sucre, called for the liberty of all the American colonies from Spain. Independence was secured in 1825. It is more than a century of independence Bolivia has suffered a strange contraction of her territory. Chile, Argentina, Brazil, and Paraguay

At the northern end of the plateau lies Lake Titicaca, about which every school boy has read. This inland sea of 3,500 square miles is the highest large lake in the world. Its surface is 12,500 feet above sea level. The immense depth of the water keeps the lake at a constant temperature of 51 degrees the year around. Cracked Fingers Can Lead to Infections

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D. Much of your trouble—with a Dear Dr. Molner. My fingers household of five children to care on both hands have been cracked for—may well be that once you get for four years now. Paper Plates, Cups Temporary investment in a household maid may be more than worth the cost. What about paper plates and cups—and can the older children wash the silverware?

Here's a new suggestion. Plastic gloves are now on the market. They look big and unwieldy but actually are handy to work in—and they leave plenty of air space inside.

An older trick is to use rubber gloves a couple of sizes too large, and wear ordinary cotton gloves inside, to keep the hands from sweating, and to avoid contact with the rubber which for some skins may be irritating.

One more, rather remote, thought. You might be checked for Raynaud's Disease, which can be a factor in pain in the hands.

Dear Dr. Molner. When I lie on my right side I am distressed by either the liver or gall bladder. However, after lying on my left side for some time, I can re- turn to the right and be comfortable. Is this something to be alarmed about?—S.A.

I doubt whether liver or gall bladder has anything to do with becoming established in the cracks, it—either if enlarged or tender, and the problem becomes chronic.

Instead, I would suspect tension, or some moderate muscular oris softening the hands. An anti stress or both. I don't suppose home save may hasten healing you'll believe me, though so why by suppressing secondary infection don't you go to your doctor and "on S" cone lotions may help as let him run a test or two to exonerate your liver and gall bladder?

Agriculture Poor

Agriculture in the area is un- rewarding. The potato eaten in dehydrated form, and a kind of millet are the main foods grown. The llama, alpaca, and the un- domesticated vicuna are the principal animals. Edible fish are supplied by Lake Titicaca. Also im- portant to the economy of the plateau are the mines. There are important deposits of tin, copper, silver and wolfram found here. The most populous cities of Bolivia all lie in the valleys or on ges below the level of the plateau. Bolivia's main problem is that the main mass of population is economically, in the wrong place — the plateau—not in the poten- tially rich Eastern lowlands. Spahn Hurls 5-Hit Game as Braves Defeat Cubs, 4-2

6,542 Fans Watch McMillan Hit Third Homer of Year

MILWAUKEE (AP) — What's plans to counter with right-hand this talk about a youth move- ment? At the age of 41, Warren Spahn still holds his ranking of "Stopper" on the Milwaukee Braves' pitching staff.

The Braves snapped a four-game losing streak by defeating the Chicago Cubs 4-2 with the help of Spahn's five-hit pitching and a pair of unearned runs Wednesday night before a crowd of 6,542 at County Stadium.

Spahn mastered the lowly Cubs, but it took an error to provide the Braves the victory margin. Stung by bad breaks themselves most of the season, Milwaukee quickly capitalized on the fielding miscue.

Mathews Walks

With the score tied 2-2 in the last of the sixth, Eddie Mathews led off with a walk and advanced to second as third baseman Ron Santo failed to come up with Hank Aaron's potential double play grounder. Mack Jones then singled home Mathews and Aaron came across as Del Crandall hit into a double play.

The Braves jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Roy McMillan cracked his third homer, a shot into the runway next to the left field bleachers. A triple by rookie Howie Bedell and a sacrifice fly by Eddie Mathews upped the count to 2-0 in the third.

With one out in the Chicago fourth, Ernie Banks walked on a 3-2 pitch, went to third on a single by George Altman and scored on a sacrifice fly by Santo. The Cubs tied the score in the sixth on an infield hit by Ken Hubbs, a single by Billy Williams and a sacrifice fly by Banks.

The Braves then scored their decisive runs in the sixth and Chicago starter Glenn Hobbie was saddled with his sixth straight defeat of the season.

Spahn struck out five and walked three in boosting his season record to 5-4 and winning the 314th game of his National League career. Two of the hits off him didn't get past the infield and another was a pop fly behind third.

The victory enabled the Braves to maintain their hold on sixth place and move within 9½ games of pace-setting San Francisco, defeated 10-7 by Philadelphia. The Phillies are percentage points behind Milwaukee.

The Braves named southpaw Bob Hendley, holder of a 2-3 record, to oppose the Cubs in the series windup tonight. Chicago

Hornung Will Return to Duty In 2-3 Weeks

Appendix Severely Infected; Paul in Satisfactory Shape

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Paul Hornung, professional football star now in the Army, underwent surgery for appendicitis Wednesday in a Kansas City hospital. His condition later was reported satisfactory.

The Green Bay Packer player was admitted to the hospital Tuesday. He had become ill here while en route from Columbus, Ohio to Ft. Riley, Kan., where he is a corporal with the First Infantry Division.

Dr. D. M. Nigro said Hornung's appendix was severely infected and almost ruptured. Even so, the doctor reported, he should be out of the hospital in a week and ready for full Army duty in two or three weeks. Unless there are unusual complications, he should be going full tilt by the time the Packers start training for the 1962 season on July 15. Hornung is due for release from the Army about the same time.

Powell to be Out 1 to 3 More Days With Sprained Wrist

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles cut good news Wednesday. Left fielder John "Boog" Powell's wrist is not broken after all.

Powell reinjured his wrist in Cleveland Monday night and X-rays showed a hairline fracture.

But the Orioles said the fracture was one Powell received last November in Arizona Winter League play and the new injury was only a sprain.

The club said Powell may miss from one to three more days, as minor.

Neenah, Appleton, Menasha Bid for State Berths

Four Fox Cities area schools will compete in the Oshkosh sectional tennis tournament Saturday.

Play begins at 9 a.m. at the Webster Stanley Junior High School courts.

In addition to host Oshkosh, Appleton, Menasha and Neenah will also compete for state meet berths. Others in the field will be Fond du Lac, Ripon, Beaver Dam, Green Bay East, Marinette, Green Bay West and Waupun.

The remaining seven sectional tournaments will be held at Janesville, Madison East, Nicolet, Shorewood, Wausau, Wauwatosa and West Bend.

A total of 85 schools, 14 more than last year, will enter tennis.

The overlap to the baseball eliminations this year. Boys' season would be a deterrent to having first and second in singles any such idea," said Rozelle. "We and doubles as well as the first soon will have a complete exhibition schedule to announce. I believe for the state meet, June 1 have each team plays five pre- and 2, at Neenah.

NFL Commissioner Sees No Further Expansion In Immediate Future

Rozelle Granted Bonus, $10,000 Salary Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League has extended another solid vote of confidence in Commissioner Pete Rozelle by voting him a $10,000 bonus and boosting his salary $10,000 to $60,000 a year for five years.

In less than two years, the successor to the late Bert Bell has led the league to a clear cut court Football League and helped clear the way for a new $93 million 2-year single network CBS television deal.

As a result of the court victory the league no longer lives under the shadow of a huge damage action. Under the new TV contract each club is expected to get $20,000 a year from the TV rights.

"We have no further expansion moves in mind until our two newest clubs (Minnesota and Dallas) are soundly well off the ground," said Rozelle, when asked about the future.

Play Against AFL?

Did the end of the court action mean that the NFL might consider playing exhibition or a playoff game with the AFL?

"I always have answered that by saying you don't consider playing games with people who are suing you for millions of dollars," said Rozelle. "Now let's just say we are not considering such a matter at this time."

A newsman asked Rozelle if the league would consider lengthening its schedule to start earlier in the fall and thus cut down on the number of exhibition games, than last year, will enter tennis.

"The overlap to the baseball eliminations this year. Boys' season would be a deterrent to having first and second in singles any such idea," said Rozelle. "We and doubles as well as the first soon will have a complete exhibition schedule to announce. I believe for the state meet, June 1 have each team plays five pre- and 2, at Neenah.

Sectional Net Tourney Set For Oshkosh

Neenah, Appleton, Menasha Bid for State Berths

Four Fox Cities area schools will compete in the Oshkosh sectional tennis tournament Saturday.

Play begins at 9 a.m. at the Webster Stanley Junior High School courts.

In addition to host Oshkosh, Appleton, Menasha and Neenah will also compete for state meet berths. Others in the field will be Fond du Lac, Ripon, Beaver Dam, Green Bay East, Marinette, Green Bay West and Waupun.

The remaining seven sectional tournaments will be held at Janesville, Madison East, Nicolet, Shorewood, Wausau, Wauwatosa and West Bend.

A total of 85 schools, 14 more than last year, will enter tennis.

The overlap to the baseball eliminations this year. Boys' season would be a deterrent to having first and second in singles any such idea," said Rozelle. "We and doubles as well as the first soon will have a complete exhibition schedule to announce. I believe for the state meet, June 1 have each team plays five pre- and 2, at Neenah.

Foxes Lose, 12-11, Play Here Tonight

Decatur Wins In Bottom Of Ninth

DECATUR, Ill. — Decatur's Dave Warde belted a triple to center field to score Jim Harris with the deciding run and send the Fox Cities down to a 12-11 defeat here Wednesday evening.

Ed Watt, the fifth Foxes' hurler, was the victim after getting the first two men he faced in the bottom portion of the ninth. Watt walked Harris then gave up the game-winning blow.

The Foxes open a 5-game home stand tonight against Keokuk.

It was an uphill climb for the Foxes last night as they fell behind, 3-1, at the end of two innings. Singles by Cal Ripken and Jack Seymore accounted for the lone Foxes run, while wildness on the part of Fox Cities' hurlers helped give the Decatur club the eight markers.

Foxes Come Back

The Foxes came back with a pair of runs in the third on three passes, a fielder's choice, and a single by Bob Lewandowski.

Six runs in the fourth enabled the Foxes to take the lead. The biggest blow of the inning was a triple by Tom Fisher, who performed the longest of the five pitchers. Jimmie Norwood and Ripken had doubles and Dan Markowski belted a single in the big inning. Decatur hurlers contributed a trio of walks.

Decatur grabbed an 11-9 advantage with three runs in the sixth but the Foxes narrowed it to 11-10 in the seventh on a single by Bill Hartshorn, an error, and a wild pitch.

It was Hartshorn's triple and Bob Litchfield's 2-bagger in the ninth that tied the count.

Phillies Hand Giants Third Straight Loss

Dodgers Replace Cardinals in Second Place

BY MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia's flip-flop Phillies, rejoining the National League's more respected members for the 1962 campaign, have continued San Francisco's skid and trimmed another length off the Giants' bulge in that quickly tightening pennant race.

Playing solid ball after shaking off the effects of last year's disastrous 27-game losing streak and a last-place finish 46 games back, the Phillies further emphasized their regained stature by thumping the league-leading Giants 10-7 Wednesday night.

It was the third consecutive loss for the Giants and the sixth in eight games for the slipping San Franciscans, who up until a week ago were pulverizing the opposition with 17 victories in 20 games.

Now the Phils, striving to climb into the first division of the expanded 10-club circuit, have cut the Giants' edge to 1½ games while moving into a virtual tie for sixth place.

The Los Angeles Dodgers moved into second place with a 3-1 triumph over the New York Mets behind Don Drysdale's four-hitter. St. Louis, its six-game victory string ended by a 6-3 loss to Pittsburgh, dropped into third, 2½ back.

Cincinnati Blanked

Houston blanked fourth-place Cincinnati 2-0 on Ken Johnson's five-hitter and Milwaukee beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2 as Warren Spahn posted the 314th triumph of his career with a five-hitter.

Tony Taylor and rookie Ted Savage each stroked a double and two singles scoring three runs apiece to pace the Phillies' 13 hit outburst against Mike McCormick and four successors. Al Mahaffey started for the Phils, allowed only four hits through six innings, but had to leave when his arm stiffened.

The Dodgers cracked a 1-1 tie in the eighth when singles by Jim

Late Homer Barrage Gives Dick Donovan Eighth Win in a Row

Joe Pepitone Hits 2 Circuit Drives in Same Inning as Yankees Retain Lead

BY JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Remember the hard-luck Dick Donovan of just a year ago, with that disheartening string of five successive one-run losses? His luck is a little better this season, and so's his record. It's 8-0.

The big right-hander became the first eight-game winner in the majors Wednesday night when the Cleveland Indians cut loose with another eleventh-hour home run attack and overpowered the Chicago White Sox 5-4. Pinch hitting rookie Al Luplow and Chuck Essegian connected back-to-back in the ninth inning as the Tribe won for the third time in a week with ninth inning homers.

The victory enabled the admittedly pennant-conscious Indians to keep pace with New York in the American League race and gave another boost to the dogged Donovan, who survived that 6-3 start with Washington last season and finished 10-10 with the AL's leading earned run mark.

Floyd-Liston Fight Slated For Chicago

Sept. 17 or 24
Most Likely Dates,
Promoters Say

NEW YORK, (AP) — If you've been wondering, or even worrying, where the Floyd Patterson-Sonny Liston heavyweight title fight will be held, you can relax now. Chicago is the spot, on either Sept. 17 or 24. Ninety-nine per cent sure says Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports Inc., appointed promoters by the champion himself, Floyd Patterson.

"Unless something comes up, Chicago is the place," said Patterson at a press conference Wednesday evening. Patterson has the right to be skeptical since the night before he thought it was all set for Detroit.

"But at the last minute I discovered that the people in Detroit were figuring on having local promoters to help stage the fight," Patterson immediately said that was impossible because Championship Sports Inc. will be the sole promoters," said Patterson.

"The only hitch that has to be overcome in Chicago, according to both Patterson and Bolan, is to get a "reasonable rental" for either Soldier Field or Comiskey Park.

"If they should ask us for a rental of $200,000 or $300,000 for either of those fields then it's something else again," said the champion.

Interlake and Post-Crescent Score Second Softball Wins

AMERICAN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

Team	W	L	City
Interlake-1	2	0	City Hall
Post-Crescent	1	1	Elm Tree
AOL	1	1	Miller Electric
App. Coated	1	1	Wis. Wire

Interlake No. 1 and Post-Crescent share the lead in the American Industrial League after the second week of action.

Both teams capped their second straight Tuesday. Post-Crescent edged City Hall, 5-4, and Interlake No. 1 topped AOL, 6-2. In other games, Elm Tree defeated Miller Electric, 6-4, and App. Coated downed Wisconsin Wire, 7-3.

Bud Koehnke allowed the P.C. batters only three hits but lost the eighth inning on a run-scoring fly. Harry Nelson batted three hits to pace City Hall.

Ron Olm belted a home run to tie the score for City Hall in the seventh and send the game into overtime. Post-Crescent won in the eighth when Sonny Kneepkins walked, went to third on an error and scored on Gene Schuides' fly ball.

Bob Dreier hurled a 3-hitter against AOL. He displayed perfect control as he walked none and fanned eight.

Harry Wirth got the mound decision for Elm Tree and Jerry Vanden Heuvel got the loss. Le-television and the rest of the ancillary rights.

"If it falls through, I'll go to Liston's camp or he'll come to mine and we'll fight it out," said Patterson.

Name Higginbottom UW's 'Most Valuable'

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin's standout sophomore quarterback, Elzie Higginbottom, was named Tuesday night as the Badgers' most valuable track man during the 1962 season, which saw Wisconsin take the indoor title and finish second outdoors.

Tom Creagan of Rockford, Ill., a middle distance runner, was picked as captain for the 1963 season.

Elmiers Ezerins of Union Grove, Big Ten outdoor champion in both the discus and shot put, was named the team's most improved member. Only seven Badgers, including Ezerins, have been double winners in a Big Ten championship meet.

Poised Champion

The poised champion, who was on hand to promote the sale of his autobiography as well as the fight, said a Chicago man, whose name he couldn't remember, will buy Championship Sports but only on a salary basis.

It is most likely will be Irving Silverman, associated with Chicago boxing for many years.

The Turner, a member of the Illinois Athletic Commission who has coached Liston as a challenger, pointed out that under Illinois law a promoter must be licensed in the state for three years. There apparently were no new licenses in 1961.

A. Brian, brother of Tom and vice president of CSI, is in Chicago where he has conferred with Mayor Richard Daley, Turner, and Ed Short, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, who own Comiskey Park.

Patterson is partial to Chicago. It is the city where he won the then vacant heavyweight crown by knocking out Archie Moore in 1956 and it's the site of boxing's richest gate—the $245,000 pulled in by Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney for the famous "long count" battle in 1927.

"The fight is a cinch to gross about a million and a half in Chicago," said Tom Bolan. "We didn't do at least four or five million more with closed circuit."

We are happy to join the U.S. Department of Agriculture in saluting the contributions of American farmers to the Nation's welfare.

Farm Expenses Reach High of $26.9 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm things as machinery, seed and production expenses reached a fertilizer record of $26.9 billion in 1961. The department said, however, about $500 million more than in that the 1961 increase over the 1960. Another rise may be expected in 1962.

The Agriculture Department's gross farm income said increases in farm production. Higher income expenses in recent years have been partly due to higher prices came about equally from higher paid and partly to larger government payments and from ties of production inputs, or such an increase in cash receipts from marketings of farm products, the department said.

A larger volume of livestock and livestock products marketings, together with a slight improvement in prices received from crops, produced the increase in cash receipts.

Wages Higher

Farm wage rates so far in 1962 stable over the last few years are moderately higher than in 1961 and some further rise is expected. An off-setting factor is the indicated smaller amount of labor hired, so that the total farm wage bill for 1962 may not be much different from last year.

Prices of farm machinery and borrowings are expected to push all nicely wrapped in transparent paperwrap so he can be admired before he's eaten.

Protect Picnic Pie

To make sure that your pie arrives at the picnic the same perfect specimen it was when it came out of the oven, place an empty pie tin on the top of the pie in a tin and fasten the two tins together with cellophane tape.

Delight Youngsters With 'Surprise' Outdoor Lunch

If you're planning an outdoor meal for youngsters, provide bite-size. Then put in a salty, "Surprise Baskets" which can be made up in a few minutes from pint-sized round paper containers to which pipe-cleaner-and-ribbon handles are attached.

Here's a delightful way to fill the "basket." First, at the very bottom hide the surprise—a little egg man. He's a hard-cooked egg with bright pimento eyes, and a cheerful pimento smile.

Next surround him with fresh will get enormous pleasure out of eating the "cover" and digging through the various layers of the picnic basket to discover the surprise at the bottom.

Thursday, May 24, 1962 Appleton Post-Crescent C10

Cool Beverage
For a beverage to go with the surprise baskets, blend one quart of milk with one pint of strawberry ice cream using a rotary beater. Fill paper cups with the mixture and store in the freezer until frozen. Serve with straws and spoons.

You'll have ready-made milk shakes which can be served right from the freezer. They defrost as the children eat them, and they enjoy the icy coldness with the food in the picnic baskets.

Perfect partners for the surprise baskets are paper cups, plates and napkins. They come in gay colors and patterns which the young fry enjoy eating from, and best of all—for mom, no dishwashing.

Khrushchev to Visit Romania During June

MOSCOW (AP)—The Presidium announced that Soviet Premier Khrushchev will pay a state and party visit to Romania during the last half of June.

Khrushchev paid a similar visit to Bulgaria last week. The two visits into Eastern Europe seemed to indicate a plan to concentrate more attention on the neighboring Communist states.

Over 500,000 Expected in State Parks for Holiday

Conservation Department Urges Prompt Purchase of Fee Stickers

With some 500,000 persons expected to open the picnic and camping season in Wisconsin state parks and forests during the week of Memorial Day, the Conservation Department urges prompt purchase of annual park stickers in order to avoid an inconvenient wait-in-line.

The fee, either the $2 sticker for all-year use in any state park or the 50-cent use sticker, went into effect this month for High Cliff State Park as well as all other state parks and forests. No fee is necessary to travel the highway through High Cliff Park, but the car must continue its journey and not stop in the park. The fee is for the park itself and any of its facilities.

At the present time, either type of sticker may be purchased at High Cliff Park from Anton Freidauer, present park foreman, or any of the park employees on duty. A sticker also may be obtained by sending a $2 check or money order to Park Sticker, Wisconsin Conservation Department, Box 450, Madison 1, Wis.

The 50-cent daily fee sticker cannot be purchased in advance. It must be obtained at the location where it will be used and stamped with the date of the visit. Negotiations are currently under way with coin machine manufacturers to determine whether the daily sticker can be distributed by machine.

Tips to Campers
Roman Koenings, state forests and parks superintendent, said every effort will be made to cause the public as little inconvenience as possible during the big push that will come during the traditional opening week of the outdoor recreation season. He predicted that good weather during the May 26 to June 3 week would just about "fill up" state facilities. Koenings warned campers to leave early and be prepared to travel further to be certain of finding a spot.

The number of persons allowed at any campground will continue to be limited again this year and visitors will be turned away from areas that are full. Camps may not be set up after 10 p.m. or broken down before 6 a.m. No reservations are permitted.

Koenings said holiday campers should have several alternative areas in mind and added that the farther north the traveler goes the better the chances of finding a campsite.

Fine State System
He pointed out that proceeds from the park sticker, coupled with the new outdoor recreation act program, will provide the ever-increasing number of Wisconsin park and forest users with outdoor recreational facilities second-to-none in the nation.

He said use of campgrounds and parks have been rising for the last 12 years. The rate of increase on park visitations is about five times as great as the population growth of the state in the past 11 years and the rate on campground use is nearly 20 times higher.

Both park visitations and the number of campers is expected to increase again this season for the 12th year in a row. Last year some 5,470,000 persons visited state parks, an increase of nearly a quarter-of-a-million over 1960. Camper days at state parks were up 66,000 to 559,000 and at state forests the number of campers was up 11,000 to 272,000.

Last year Devil's Lake State Park again received heavier use than any other spot in the state with 1,317,799 visitations and 212,168 camper days on the tally. Peninsula State Park was second with 574,837 visitations and 99,000 camper days. Other big use areas were Interstate Park with 351,260 visitations, Rib Mountain with 313,053 and Pattison State Park with 266,304 visitations.

Especially high camper-use was also recorded at Northern Highland State Forest with 92,534 camper days and Maube Lake in the Kettle Moraine State Forest with 35,903 camper days.

The Rev. Alfred Hietpas celebrated his 25th solemn anniversary mass at St. Nicholas Church Wednesday morning followed by a dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Versteegen, Oshkosh, top, left, were guests. Father Hietpas holds a picture of Mrs. Versteegen when, as a youngster, she was the symbolic bride, as is customary at an ordination ceremony to show priest's attachment to the church. Bishop Stanislaus V. Bona, bishop of the Green Bay diocese, visited with Father Hietpas before Mass. Father Hietpas is shown praying the solemn prayers of the Canon of the mass, bottom photo.

Sanity Test Scheduled for Oshkosh Man

Psychiatrist Named To Examine Accused Slayer of Mrs. Gokey

OSHKOSH—Dr. Benjamin Glover, Madison, has been named as the psychiatrist to examine George Schuster, 38, Oshkosh, charged with third-degree murder in the April 18 death of Mrs. May Gokey, 61.

A sanity hearing for Schuster has been scheduled for June 1 by County Judge Herbert J. Mueller, District Atty. Jack D. Steinhilber said the examination would be conducted before the hearing date.

Schuster is free on $10,000 bond pending the sanity hearing which was scheduled after the question of Schuster's mental condition was raised at his preliminary hearing May 18.

A pathologist has ruled Mrs. Gokey died of a heart attack, induced by physical trauma. Schuster has admitted, in statements given to police, being in her house the night she died but has denied causing her death.

Institute Shows High Speed Film At Europe Talks

Robert C. McKee, head of the container section of the research staff of the Institute of Paper Chemistry, appeared before a European Conference of carton manufacturers in Sorrento, Italy, Thursday, to introduce a high speed research film made recently at the Institute of Paper Chemistry.

The film, made by means of a specially designed experimental corrugator at the Institute, shows corrugating medium actually in the process of being corrugated, and its behavior while being fluted between corrugating rolls, as well as receiving adhesive and being bonded to liner medium.

The movie was filmed at 5,700 to 6,000 frames per second, sending 100 feet of film through the camera in approximately eight-tenths of a second.

The eight-tenths of a second of filmed action, in turn, lasts four minutes on the screen at normal projection speed for viewing, thus giving viewers opportunity to see actual behavior of the medium as it is being corrugated.

Insurance Firm Buys Hotel At Oshkosh

OSHKOSH — The 71 year-old Athearn Hotel was sold at foreclosure Wednesday to the Bankers Life and Casualty Co., Chicago, holder of more than $300,000 in mortgages on the property.

The insurance firm bid $260,850. There were no other bids.

Bankers Life and Casualty Co. had brought a foreclosure suit more than a year ago against Simmons Hotels, Inc., J. Willard Gragg, receiver for Simmons, Senior Citizens, Inc., W. G. Brennan, Inc., Southwest Mortgage Corp., and the State of Wisconsin.

Atty. Charles F. Nolan, representing the bidder, said there were liens against the property in 1961 totaling $301,701.

The hotel has been in trouble in the past with the city and state boards of health and the state industrial commission for violation of health and safety codes.

Oshkosh Native Given Award in Albuquerque

Mrs. Ermgard R. Gieschen, a native of Oshkosh and now of Albuquerque, has been honored with a citation and a cash award of $175 from the Atomic Energy Commission's Administrative Services Branch at the Commission's Albuquerque Operations Office.

She received the recognition for managing the mail and record

Kimberly OKs Bids on Main Sewer Projects

Appleton Concern Gets Contract for 1,000-Foot Line

KIMBERLY—The village board Tuesday night awarded bids on storm and sanitary sewer projects and water main installations, as recommended by the village engineer after tabulation of bids.

Brennan Construction, Cato, was awarded the bid for installation of 1,130 feet of sanitary sewer and 1,700 feet of water main in the Senecal plat and extension to the new high school site. Cost of the work will be $8,207.

Paul Grest Construction, Appleton, was awarded the contract for the installation of 1,000 feet of 48-inch storm sewer extended north from Oak Street. Cost is listed at $27,485.

Road Repair

The board entered into an agreement with Fox Valley Stabilization Co., Neenah, for repair of one block of roadway on Maes Avenue. Tentatively selected was the block between Lincoln and Wilson streets.

The village has been having trouble with the street breaking down each spring. The Neenah concern indicated it would pulverize the existing blacktop surface and mix it with soil cement to provide an 8-inch base. This would be covered by a 2-inch blacktop mat.

If the block of pavement holds up, a similar project will be scheduled for all of Maes Avenue. Cost of the work was estimated at 20 cents per square yard.

Purchases of a new man-driven power mower for $574 plus trade-in and a hand-operated power mower for $85 were approved. Francis Vander Weilen was appointed village board representative on the library board and the clerk-treasurer was authorized to attend a convention at Rhinlander June 27 through 29.

Board members voted to hold the next meeting June 11 rather than June 4.

Riding Stable Owner Fights Town's Orders

SHAWANO—A motion to hold up further proceedings against the Shawano Lake Riding Academy was scheduled to be heard in Circuit Court at Appleton today.

Peter Abdella, manager of the stables, initiated the motion in an effort to keep the business open against the wishes of the Town of Westcott Board until after an appeal is determined by the state Supreme Court.

Abdella said today that five warrants to close the stable because it does not comply with a town ordinance calling for the animals to be tethered at least 175 feet from the highway have been issued.

The Shawano Lake operator, acting in his own defense, appealed a lower court decision, which would have closed the stable, to the Supreme Court. The appeal has been acknowledged and is scheduled for the fall term.

Judge Fines Man $120 for Speeding

OSHKOSH — Robert Stubbs, 26, Wilmette, Ill., was fined a total of $120 this morning by County Branch 3 Judge James V. Sitter after he changed his plea to guilty of speeding and passing in a no-passing zone.

Stubbs was arrested in April on U.S. 41 at County Trunk E by state police who clocked him at 89 miles an hour at night while he was passing a car at the intersection.

Two Young Men Pay Dreadful Price For Classic Antagonism

African students were fired upon with a small calibre revolver at about 1 a.m. Saturday. One slug ricocheted and clipped leather from the shoe of one of the students.

The three-men were fired at from a moving car as they walked down Main Street here. They are Don Muthengi, Jesse Kimani and Crispus Muema.

"Whoever shot at us was serious," said Kimani, an editor of the East African News Letter, a publication for East African students in the Americas. "They meant to hit us," he said.

However, Police Chief E. L. Zeaman does not think so.

They Were 'Cowboys'

"They were 'cowboys.' I call them, and I think it was done to scare the boys and not to injure them. If they had been serious they could have hit them at that short distance."

"I don't think race prejudice is involved at all here," he said in answer to the question. "I think the people who fired the gun would have done it no matter what color the students were."

Portage County Dist. Atty. John Haka also discounted the possibility of racial prejudice.

"In my opinion, you can't say there's any racial thing at all," he said.

Haka also believes the shooting was not linked to the Dombrowski-Amini altercation 24 hours earlier, nor to feelings arising from the slaying

Maintenance Main Task of County, Commission Says

Guidelines Needed For Development, Conference Hears

Wisconsin Unique in Nation, Carley Tells 350 at Meeting

BY REINY WESSING
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN LAKE — Forming comprehensive guidelines for Wisconsin's potential industrial development is the single most important task of the state government, David Carley said here this morning.

Carley is director of resource development and was the opening speaker for the annual governor's conference on resource and development. About 350 people attended the opening session.

In order to control the future industrial development of the state these guidelines are necessary because with an estimated population increase of 3 to 4 million in the next 40 years, the state will still have the same amount of land and water resources to work with, he said.

State Unique

Max Anderson, of the state planning office in Madison, said Wisconsin is unique in trying to form a comprehensive state plan to see that all its resources are used. Other states, he said, attack only single phases of planning. California and Minnesota have such plans for specific things such as recreation.

Anderson said a comprehensive plan is important because the state rapidly is changing from agriculture to an industrial economy. Wisconsin in trying to make itself attractive to industry is placing advertisements in national publications under the headline "Wisconsin Cuts Taxes on Industry," according to David Wiggins, editor of the resource newsletter.

Do More Good

Wiggins said existing industries in the state can do a lot to promote both the state and themselves by closely associating themselves with a certain locale and using that in their advertising. Wiggins cited Wausau Mutuals national advertisements, the Giddings and Lewis Machine Co. brochure on its Kaukauna plant and the Miller Brewing Co.'s vacation booklet.

Wiggins said this will do more

Neenah Man Named To County Patrol

OSHKOSH — William C. Greenfield, 32, 816 Caroline St., Neenah, has been named to the Winnebago County highway patrol, succeeding Roger Fugle Berg who resigned May 1.

Greenfield is married and has two children. He was an auto salesman and a former freight dispatcher for a Neenah trucking firm.

He will start his two weeks training period today, working on the 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. shift headed by Sgt. Leroy Luit.

Paul Dudley White Cites Great Epidemic In Talk at YMCA

BY JACQUELINE FIX
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Atherosclerosis, the great American epidemic of today, is apparently dependent on the misuse of our prosperity," Dr. Paul Dudley White told a full house at the Appleton YMCA Wednesday.

Dr. White, a prominent Boston heart specialist who was a consultant for former President Eisenhower following his heart attack, is a spirited 75-year-old proponent of a vigorous program of exercise for persons of all ages.

He attacked "the pushbutton existence of our living today — the automobile age, the elevator age."

Talking almost conversationally and emphasizing his points with sharp jabs of his right hand, the doctor told the audience there is no reason why life expectancy should not be increased to 100. "Everybody may die suddenly of a heart attack at 100 after having been in perfect health," he said, "but 35 or 40, or 55 or 70, is too early."

Our Own Fault

"A man of 70 should not expect a heart attack or a stroke," he went on. "It is not necessary; it is our own fault. It is not God's fault."

Road Building Job for Private Contractors, Not Local Unit, State Chief Says

CHILTON — The primary function of a county highway department is that of a service unit, not a construction company, Harvey Grasse, State Highway Commission chairman, told a group of some 90 county highway officials at a Division No. 3 spring meeting Wednesday at the Altona supper club, New Holstein.

Despite this basic purpose and because of the equipment and manpower necessary to carry it through, county highway departments are often called on for road construction in the federal aid to secondary system, Grasse stated.

Grasse's remarks were made during an explanation on county highway department participation in FAS construction work.

He said consideration is given to any possible interference with private enterprise before such a construction job is assigned to a county highway department. The departments are paid on a unit or day labor basis for construction work.

Tend To Over-Equip

Some departments, he stated, have a tendency to over-equip and over-staff primarily for construction. Their purpose, he said, however, is not to build but to maintain roads.

The State Highway Commission head was one of a panel of speakers who addressed the day-long meeting of highway commissioners and committeemen from the 12 counties that comprise Division No. 3.

Outagamie County's supervisors just ended an attempt to obtain private contractor's bids for county roads by indicating that the county will continue to build its own highways. There has been a continuing attempt by Appleton Supv. Alois C. Fischer, former business agent for the Operating Engineer's union and head of a private organization called Counties for Tomorrow, to get the

High Court Justices to Honor Arps

CHILTON — State Supreme Court justices will be among the jurists attending a testimonial banquet for retiring Circuit Court Judge Helmut F. Arps June 2 at the Altona supper club, New Holstein.

The event is being arranged by the Calumet County Bar Association and its president, Edward S. Eick, Chilton, is in charge of planning.

In addition to the high court justices, one of whom will serve as speaker, many circuit court and county court judges from throughout the state are expected to attend the event to honor Judge Arps' 15 years on the bench of the Third Judicial Circuit comprised of Calumet and Winnebago counties.

Judge Arps was appointed to the post in 1947 by Governor Oscar Rennebohm when Judge Henry Hughes, Arps' predecessor, was elected to the State Supreme Court.

Judge Arps retained the position in the 1958 election and has held it ever since.

Resolution on Court Vacancy Goes to Nelson

A resolution urging Gov. Gaylord Nelson to appoint County Judge A. W. Parnell to a vacancy in the State Supreme Court was passed unanimously Wednesday by the Langlade, Outagamie, Shawano and Menominee county bar associations.

The groups met at the Outagamie County courthouse to act on the resolution. The vacancy was created by the death of Justice Grover Broadfoot.

William Hegner, president of the Outagamie County Bar Association, said the resolution was sent to Gov. Nelson's office by special delivery letter. Parnell has been 10th Judicial Circuit judge since 1952 when he was appointed by Gov. Walter Kohler.

Club Formed to Back Sgt. Else

Roy E. Schulze has been named chairman of an Elsie for Sheriff club formed Wednesday night. The club will support George Else, who has announced his candidacy for sheriff in the Sept. 11 primary.

Carleton Fredericks was elected secretary-treasurer. Else, a Republican, is a sergeant on the Outagamie County Traffic patrol.

Town Clerk for 44 Years—State Record?

MADISON — Is there anyone in Wisconsin who has served more than 44 years as a town clerk?

The Wisconsin Towns Association wants to know. Tentatively, the Association believes that C. W. Thomas, clerk of the town of Washburn in Bayfield County, who has held office without interruption since 1918 in his town, has established a record.

Hearing Postponed

A preliminary hearing set for Friday has been postponed to await the expected arrival here of a representative from the Iranian Embassy at Washington. A spokesman there Wednesday said.

Redistricting to Haunt State GOP At Convention

Federal Judges Will Order Move if Legislature Refuses

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent News Service

MADISON — An unscheduled political problem will haunt Republican members of the state legislature, controlling the state senate and assembly, when they gather at Milwaukee Friday to take part in the state Republican convention.

Should they reconvene the state legislature, now in recess, to take up the issue of legislative redistricting, or should they settle for a platform plank pledging to enact a reapportionment act when the houses reconvene next January, following the new legislative elections in the fall?

The issue has taken on a fresh importance and political volatility with the virtual declaration of a panel of three federal court judges this week that they will be required to order redistricting, if the legislature refuses to do so.

The statement of the judges came in a suit brought by Attorney General John W. Reynolds, a Democrat, to get court redistricting under the rule laid down by the U. S. Supreme Court a month ago.

Own Initiative

The jurists made it perfectly plain that they will act if the issue is drawn, but that they also prefer that the legislature act upon its own initiative and thus make a court decree unnecessary.

The question the Republican legislative majority leadership is now mulling is whether such a court-directed reapportionment would provide effective ammunition for the Democratic party in the new election campaigns, and damage the Republican cause.

There will be anxious huddles during the off-hours at the GOP convention Friday and Saturday of the Republican legislative whip.

Preliminary reactions of legislative Republican leaders, privately expressed, is that they should wait for a firm court mandate before they make a decision. The final court judgment may not come for a week or even days.

Some Republican legislators feel that the issue is not an effective one because only a small handful of legislative seats would be changed even under a letter perfect redistricting. But others point out that such information is not clearly understood by the voting public, and that Reynolds as the Democratic candidate for governor is preparing to make the Republican redistricting default a major campaign issue.

Increasing Concern

That there is increasing concern about the question in Republican circles, meanwhile, is suggested by reliable reports that that Republican convention platform committee has proposed an uncompromising statement on redistricting.

It will ask for a pledge for "constitutional" redistricting on a population basis in 1963, without hedging or reservations. The constitution literally required redistricting by the present legislature, as the first sitting after the 1960 federal census.

In other years the Republicans have had equivocal reapportionment pledges, reflecting the acute city spokesmen demanding such Rural Democratic politicians, as Gov. Nelson and Reynolds, division in the party between the urban dominance as the rightful including legislators, have the have defied them.

will, any more than it was God's will that babies should die young. Life expectancy can be boosted by control of atherosclerosis, he said.

He advocated "a program of positive health." "We should begin long before 30 or 35 to promote a program of vigorous physical exercise, especially of the leg muscles and especially by men, starting with teen-agers," he said.

"I don't think any person should gain any weight after the age of 24 or 25, because it is fat," he added. "Not many put on much muscle after 25."

Common Disease

Atherosclerosis, which affects the inner lining of the arteries, is the most common of all diseases except mental disturbances and is the chief cause of death in the United States today, Dr. White said. This is the disease we have to contend with instead of tuberculosis, which a generation ago was the chief cause of death, he said. "We've conquered that, and I see no reason why we should not conquer this, with research."

Our country has the greatest amount of coronary heart disease in the world, he said, but it is common in any part of the world where people live prosperously. The major factors causing atherosclerosis, in addition to heredity, are the pushbutton living and the rich diet, he declared.

Most Vital Part

The arteries are the most vital part of the circulation, Dr. White said, and circulation is improved by good tone of the muscles, which help squeeze the veins and send the blood back to the heart. The very act of walking improves circulation, he noted.

The brain has arteries too, he went on, pointing out that "the brain and its blood supply is just as important and more so than the heart. One can get by with a defective heart for some time, but not with a defective brain, which is the seat of the mind, the soul and the personality."

Optimal blood supply to the brain is affected harmfully by three factors — anemia, physical indolence and muscular softness, and atherosclerosis, he said.

We need vigorous exercise to maintain good muscle tone, asserted the short, slight doctor, who is an ardent hiker and cyclist. Walking is the easiest and possibly the best for most people, he said, also recommending cycling, swimming, mountain climbing and farming.

The kind of exercise to start in the teens and 20s is much less important than the use of legs in any kind of exercise, he said in answer to a question from a teen-ager, adding that the exercise should be continued right through life.

The hazardous time is when the young man of 24 or 25 begins his life work, gets married, finds that his wife cooks too well, puts on weight and doesn't have time for exercise, Dr. White said. "Exercise is absolutely as essential to health as eating and sleeping."

Branch Out

The doctor, who has been active in YMCA work since he spent his summers as a boy at the Y's Camp Becket in western Massachusetts, urged that the YMCA branch out and promote more outdoor activities, possibly useful work on farms and in forests, through its summer camps and possibly with youth hostels. Talking with dry humor and quips that obviously hit home with the audience, Dr. White also interspersed his talk with these capsules of advice:

"If you're not used to keeping fit, the first day may be painful — but you may get to enjoy it."

"It has been the custom not to start programs of fitness until 30, or 40, or 50. Life begins at 40 — but it should begin in the teens."

Best Tranquilizer

"Fitness depends on nutrition — or avoidance of overnutrition or undernutrition."

(In an aside, "By the way, calories do count.")

"A little fatigue of the muscles is the best tranquilizer in the world."

"I'm not a therapeutic nihilist, but we've got too many medicines."

"Calisthenics is all right as far as it goes, but you must do very much of it to equal the value of a three mile walk or a bicycle ride."

"We could save thousands of dollars if we could get our children to walk to school again, or to ride bicycles to school — and if adults would walk or ride bicycles to work."

"Exercise is the best antidote for nervous tension."

"Tobacco does not do you any good. I think we have been much too tolerant in this country about this during the past few decades."

Stevens Point Death Holds Interesting Tale

Wednesday morning Amini was hospitalized at Wausau to undergo X-rays to determine the extent of his injuries, which include a possible broken cheekbone and a fractured nose. He will be kept there for "about three days" according to his physician, Dr. Robert Rittenman.

It seems apparent that the tragic death of Dombrowski came as a fearful culmination of a long series of "jangles" between the students and some of the young men of Stevens Point and environs.

Brawls are commonplace and almost invariably between students and non-students. Recentment has been built up over a long period of time, and it takes many forms.

Competition Keen

Competition for girls is keen. Many young ladies are said to prefer going with college men because of the possibility of better income status after graduation.

There also is resentment not been offered such financial against the college students which aid. One group of students talk often is based on what one young of sending a letter of condemnation termed "theif... snobbish lence."

Do You Own Dog That Bit Little Valerie Lillge?

Do you own a whitish colored dog with brown or black spots?

Or do you know anyone who has such a dog?

Little five-year-old Valerie Lillge, 230 W. Fifth Street, would like to know.

Several days ago Valerie was bitten by a dog identified as whitish colored with brown or black spots. Health authorities say the dog must be found and placed under observation. If it isn't, little Valerie will have to undergo a series of shots for rabies — and rabies shots aren't pleasant, especially for a five-year-old girl.

Chances are that the dog is perfectly all right and therefore the shots would be unnecessary, but no one knows unless the dog is found.

Malmen who walk beats in the vicinity of Valerie's home have been looking for such a dog. The police have been looking and every child in the neighborhood. Appeals have been made over radio and through the newspaper.

If you know of such a dog, contact the police department or Valerie's folks. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lillge, 230 W. Fifth Street.

highway system by 28 miles, resulting in an over all gain in state highway aids. The hike was brought about by increased state aid to the townships.

Dr. Alexander said the aid system should be adjusted to suit all needs. He also pointed out the increasing role of the county highway departments in the general state road picture, stating that county units are best able to evaluate local needs.

Burmester stressed the need for zoning controls near major traffic arteries and interchanges to avoid sending a heavy flow of traffic through residential areas. Many counties are considering this type of zoning legislation, he said.

Winter Costs High
Maintenance problems and the statewide reporting of winter road conditions were the topics of C. E. Aten, highway commission maintenance engineer. He stated that winter maintenance cost the state $2.4 million more than was budgeted and consequently has drained off some of the money labeled for surfacing this year.

L. W. Empey, Green Bay, Division No. 3 engineer for the highway commission, led a general discussion on district problems and A. J. Thelen, executive secretary of the Wisconsin County Board's Association, spoke on items of current legislation of interest to county highway organizations.

John B. Diederich, Chilton, chairman of the Calumet County Highway Committee, was re-elected president of the 12-county division organization. Newly elected vice president was Emil West, Marinette County highway commissioner, and Robert W. Fricke, Manitowish County highway committee man, was elected secretary, replacing Robert Jansen, Brown County.

Nearly All Attended
Arthur Schnell, Chilton, highway commissioner of the host unit, Calumet County, said attendance was "almost 100 per cent."

Louis Huibregtse, Brillion, Calumet County Board chairman, gave the opening address and New Holstein Mayor, Paul Langefeld, welcomed the group.

Counties represented include Calumet, Sheboygan, Manitowish, Brown, Door, Oconto, Outagamie, Winnebago, Kewaunee, Menominee, Shawano and Marinette.
